

i love to play with rocks

Posted by DovInIsrael - 24 Mar 2011 19:19

ok - my last few posts I was goofy-off.

but this one is a serious one (in spite of the title).

While at the store they had some nice display rocks (about 4 fit into ones hand) - all kinds of different shapes.

I bought some...mainly as something different to have on my desk.

My kids found them very interesting - and decided to play with them.

Once I finally got them back (after bedtime) - I realized that not only are they fun to play with.

When rolled in my the palm of my hand they make nice clicking noises.

They have a strength to them - keeps me strong!

They help me to stay grounded!

and most of all - I find that my hands and fingers enjoy the nature feel of them much more than my plastic, artificial mouse and keyboard...and especially much more than clicking and flicking.

I highly recommend getting some rocks near your computer to play with instead of giving in to the urge to go clicking ..

Why does Dov-in-Israel always start new threads for his posts?

Why doesn't he start ONE thread where evryone can go to gather his pearls of wisdom?

(- the way Yechida does.)

It clogs the Forum Boards & makes it harder to find anything over there!

don't know...

maybe he is just hard-headed.

or worse a Rock-head...

(but if it makes you feel better I will try my best.. but sometimes the titles are so catchy)

Funny you should say that, i know a guy who has problem with clicking on things that have catchy titles or subjects but then he often regrets clicking and he finds that it was only the title that was catchy but inside there was only emptiness or worse.

what can i say - i plead guilty!

i am an addict.. and have trouble keeping my mind focused (except for certain things - in which case ironically i find that i am able to go into super focus mode) lets see..

oh, yea, 9th step, here it is...

if i've bothered you...

bored you...

over burdened your mind...

or have just been buggin the heck out of you with my warped sense of humor.

i appologize.

i was wrong.

what can i do to make it right ?

the one who is off his...
