

Internet Blocker

Posted by michael - 27 Jun 2011 15:19

I tried one of the blockers (Anti-Porn) but my IT dept found that it interferred with the normal functioning of the computer system. It seems to communicate independently but tries to sync with the computer's clock....

Anyhow, anyone with a solution?

=====
=====

Re: Internet Blocker

Posted by alexeliezzer - 27 Jun 2011 15:24

Will leave this one for the tech guys, but I do want to say welcome back! Hope things are going well for you.

Alex

=====
=====

Re: Internet Blocker

Posted by ZemirosShabbos - 27 Jun 2011 16:07

there are a few filters you can try. K9, SafeEyes, OpenDNS.org among others

=====
=====

Re: Internet Blocker

Posted by Me3 - 27 Jun 2011 16:41

I know that k9 has a filter for the iphone, Does anybody else know of a free internet filter that works with any other phone like a blackberry or droid, etc.

I know you can remove the internet altogether, but I'm not asking that. I'm asking about a filter and a free one or a one time fee (not jnet monthly fee).

Anybody?

=====
=====

Re: Internet Blocker

Posted by im not alone - 01 Jul 2011 04:43

Michael

I would suggest a "client based filter", which basically means that your INDIVIDUAL computer would be filtered, not the internet connection. In other words all the other computers wouldn't be affected in any way

I dont think it could interfere with the system, since it filters YOUR individual computer not the internet connection

)

I hope this helps

Much hatluchah

=====
=====