You should feel really bad and give at least $2000 to GYE as a kaporah and then wait and see what the good folk of GYE post after me!

What am i supposed to do!

Pretty much - what are you supposed to do.

Life (for me) is all about making choices, and living with them. Everyone finds something different "acceptable". For the most part, I know what is "right" and what is not. And some of the things that I would have felt genuinely "OK" about some years ago might feel "wrong" now.

That, I believe, is internal growth (although I could be wrong).

Perhaps this is just a painful reminder that you are growing up, and it's time to put the toys of childhood away. But you're asking the right question, I think. And by answering it, you will know what to do in the future.

i don't know but to me your awesome! bec if i would have been there i would have been a dead man. the very fact that you feel bad is proof that you have a spacial neshima and you feel bad that you weren't in a place that you should be. The fact that you didn't take it further is like passing a great test like that of yosef hatzaddik, you should give yourself a pat on the back and say to yourself " look at those low people i saw at that party, they are giving up their life in the world to come and DONT EVEN FEEL BAD!! i want to choose a different path". This encounter should be for you a chizzuk of WHAT NOT TO BE! Go forward and get even more better and maybe being there will actually help you go further in kedusha!!

Tuck your shirt in, say clearly in English that you are sorry, eat a burger, and move on for G-d's sake, brother.
