Okay Chevra, we have 90,000 to go. Please keep to one reason per post, and 20 words or less per reason.

When you feel like acting out, make sure to read all 90,000 reasons why you shouldn't first.

Instead of thinking about acting out you could be calling someone who'd love to hear from you.

Instead of thinking about acting out you could be cleaning the mess in your office/bedroom/computer bag/pockets.

wouldn't that make you feel better than belly-flopping into filth?

Once you try to "reason" with the Y"H, you have already lost. Avoid a conversation at all costs!

When you feel like you will "fall apart" if you don't act out....

You can give Hashem the nachas ruach of seeing that you are willing to feel like you are "falling apart".... for the sake of keeping HIS mitzvois.

Every minute that you feel like your falling apart is a separate korban to the RBS"O kaviyochol.

....even if after a while a person may end up falling chas vsholom....

You were makriv many korbanos.

well, you know it's a constant struggle - ok, not like it was when i first started, but it's still a struggle. for now, i'm focusing on 2 things:

1 - the feeling of being clean - i mean the feeling, not the knowledge of being clean. i'm trying to look at it as if it's a HOLY feeling. you see, i need to replace the feeling of acting out with a different kind of feeling - as you know. it has to be a feeling, because knowledge alone is not enough to replace that feeling of acting out.

and

2 - the terrible way i'll feel if i do not remain clean - how will i face my rabbi, myself, my wife, and G-d?
