yeah , i think he heard them loud and clear he was sitting right next to me. ;D .

BTW .

reality just do it .

as good as the fantasy is , it's just a fantasy.

continueing on the slow happy road to kedusha . focus on what you have . appreciate the life you have been given. try to stay away from stimulation of any kind . (this is very difficult). what do you do about an extremely attractive co-worker , you have succeeded in avoiding most of the time , but every so often she pops up in front of you and you're not strong enuf to give her the cold shoulder ? what i've been doing is focusing on H' getting thru' the day ,keeping the happiness going ,and letting it run itself out . been working so far. dovening i have done and do . and will do more. H' please help me get past this stupid fantasy . BTW..... porn is still poison . so is day dreaming and ogling and thinking with a dead brain in general. be positive and grateful.

I am starting to see why he called himself lamed vavnik. I'm pretty sure he is one.

(Hey this forum is the lamed-vavnik hide-out... All these Tzadikim and no one knows who they are!)

If you ever have time during the day to make a phone call to a brother than I highly advise you to do so if you feel triggered by your co-worker.

yeah, calling a brother during my work is almost impossible .

but i have a few old friends in the program i could call for support just to let out the tension and get back on earth. .Calling out for help is something i need to work on , i am a bit of a loner . sometimes i think i have to do it all myself .but i had a nice time today thinking about my Olam Habah for my mitsvos and comparing it to the temporary earthly pleasures . it was pretty nice . i also started using Asher Yotzar as a spring board for appreciating life and what i have in general . it's a nice experience . when you're full of gratitude and appreciation for what you have ,you need less . 8) 8)
