

Anti-lust diet?

Posted by Eye.nonymous - 09 Aug 2009 22:46

---

I looked at the end of one of the handbooks which mentions shots to remove one's lust, as a cop-out emergency measure.

But then I was thinking, usually whatever the doctors have figured to put in a bottle, they originally extracted it from some sort of plant.

Then I started wondering, less drastically, are there certain foods that naturally increase or decrease lust? This would be helpful to know.

On the other hand, when I heard about olive oil being helpful for memory, I mentioned it to a Rebbi of mine. He said, "it's like oiling a machine; but if the machine's off, the oil won't help."

So, I'm not suggesting any diet as a substitute for the real work. But, does it help at all?

=====

Re: Anti-lust diet?

Posted by the.guard - 09 Aug 2009 23:02

---

See some possible natural ideas here: www.guardureyes.com/GUE/Tips/TipsMedical.asp

=====

Re: Anti-lust diet?

Posted by Eye.nonymous - 12 Aug 2009 12:55

---

Wow, you really have thought of everything GUE.

=====

Re: Anti-lust diet?

Posted by the.guard - 12 Aug 2009 13:10

---

Well, almost everything. There is still one thing I didn't think of, but I forget what.

=====

=====