

Now Polish My Shoes . . .

Posted by Kedusha - 12 Aug 2009 15:44

Greetings to all,

Let me get right to the point. Suppose I were to call one of you on the phone and say the following:

Hi, here's what needs to be done today:

First wash my car - scrub it well and rinse thoroughly.

Next, my shoes need a perfect shine - make sure to buff them evenly.

Third, my laundry needs to be done today. Make sure to fold everything neatly.

You get the picture.

Your response would probably be one of the following: Since when am I your slave? Or, how much am I getting paid?

But, how many of you would say, "sure, no problem - is there anything else I can do for you?"

Yet, how often do we simply say "yes" to the y"h?

How about the following approach? Listen, y"h, I don't work for free. You want me to look at Pritzus? No problem. My fee is $100 per minute, payable in advance. You can put the cash in this manila envelope. If you're not willing to pay me, then go bother someone else.

So, next time you feel weak, ask yourself: why should I work for free? And, if you're still tempted to give in, remember: my shoes could use a good polishing!

I like it - it turns the tables around, you know, because the reason you need a shoe-shine in the first place is because of him! (Hani birckei d'rabannan deshalhi - minei havoi"! ;D

If you're not available, that's even better. But, otherwise, make him pay upfront bigtime. You'll see very quickly that the y"h does not like to do business that way!

Thanks. Of course we shouldn't make deals with the y"h. But for someone who is already close to falling, why not call the y"h's bluff? There is little to lose in that situation.

Kedusha,

It might work for some, But I'm with Reb B. on this one.

Here's A bumper sticker or sign to hang up for the Y"H.

Attention Menuval!

I Hear What You Have To Say, Every Other Day,

BUT TODAY JUST AINT THAT DAY!

I Hope The Door Hits You On The Way Out!

Now Get The Gehenom Out Of Here!
