He will shmeichel at you regardless; but it doesn't hurt to shmeichel; it's good for you, and for others around.

If you see people in the shul smiling to you, you can know they are all GYE guys.

Will you be wearing the english one for shacharis and the yissish one for mussaf or vice versa?

i think the english is perfect for the unsanneh tokef and the yiddish one might suit musaf as the yiddish one has a cigar which b4 musaf we ask vesigaar besoton levaal yastuneinu my shviger gave me on rosh hashono some simmonim and in there was, you better believe it, some "black eye beans" i thought that that might be a sign from hashem that thru the yomim noroim we can fix up those black beans we played a game called "pass the parcel" where a ball of newspaper full of wrapped goodies is passed around, and when the music stops you are allowed to try to tear out a goodie but while the happy music plays nobody gets any goodies only when the music stops only then you have the opportunity to grab a goodie same here when its dull, no happy music, thats when you have the opportunity to grow and gain leverage i lately had an interesting thought, i wonder if anyone has some scope to it are we supposed to love hashem with unconditional love, being our life good or bad or because we know that whatever comes from hashem (which is everything) is purely good, therefore we love him for being so good to us or maybe its a combi, that there has to be unconditional love in any case, but because we know that everything is good, so therefore our love to him is even greater, but thats not the reason for the love

See Mesilas Yesharim chapter 19. He explains that people on a simple level should love Hashem because all He does is actually good even if we do not see it. But those on a higher level should leave their ego out of it and love Hashem unconditionally.

thanks

a very clear answer

but for us kleine mentchelech as we know that the wife is a mirror of our behavior to hashem if we want to be able to give unconditional love to our well deserved wife we ought to give it to hashem so it will mirror back does that make any sense?
