Once on the "shluchim" and "handshaking" topic; I've heard an assortment of cute lines that Chabad shluchim have used to get themselves out of sticky situations. One that stands out in my mind is: "The last person who shook my hand donated $100,000.00 to Lubavitch". :D

Another one: "The last person who shook my hand has 11 of my children". Now, that's bound to get a reaction! :D

2B,

What a great line! Hope to use it.

Another one of the many bonuses of sporting a beard: Unlike a yarmulka and tzitzis which can come right off (cv"s!), the beard had made it extremely difficult for frum men to go to forbidden places without feeling awkward. I know many cases of frum people who have held out on some of their biggest temptations on embarrassment alone.
