

Looking for Feedback: Why is no one joining KBA??

We launched the KBA System (K'nas Based Accountability) about 10 days ago. See www.gye.org.il/kba

We offered it free for GYE members, and we were sure we'd have a big demand very quickly.

Unfortunately, in spite of the fact that we mentioned it in a few chizuk e-mails (to 3,500 people), and in spite of the fact it was spoken about at a kennes in Jerusalem before 500 people (and in the filter guide given out to 1,200 people) so far only 4 people have signed up!!

I am looking for feedback about why people are so reluctant to join. After all, we all want accountability, it's the first free system of it's kind, it's mistake proof, the billing info is stored securely and no one is charged unless we're sure there was a bad report. So why is no one joining??

Can you please share your sentiments with me below?

Thanks!

OK. That's it.

Guards real name is Farley (Yoel) Glicksburg, III. He goes by 'Mr Glicksburg' at work, by 'Farl' on the firing range, and by "Guard' on the forum...but his close friends (and beloved wife) call him 'Yoilish'. But on a bad day, his wife calls him late for dinner...

:o

Love you, Guard (Shlit"a)!!

(OK, so I'm one of the nutty ones...sorry...)

I am recently graduated looking for work. I'm thinking about doing the TaPHSiC method with a $10 - $20 knas, but $100 is often more than I have in my bank account. If I make a commitment for that I may not be able to pay my kids tuition, insurance or other necessities. As I'm writing this I realize this sounds like a rationalization - the point is not to slip - but the nature of addiction is that I've made so many commitments that I didn't end up keeping I'm just don't feel I can commit to losing the little money I have for my family.

Re: guard

I actually might want to sign up for this. I hadnt seen it until today.

Later, I will look into it more.
