

Back on the Site

Posted by strugglingguy - 28 Jan 2014 04:08

This is my first time back on the site in a couple years. I have been busy... I have had good stretches and bad stretches. Currently, I have been struggling. Today (after a couple classes) I felt I needed some "relief" so I looked at some P. I told myself I needed it and there was no stopping myself on the comp. (I get ar.d. the filter w a proxy). So, that is that...

I'm going to go now - continue with this later...

The term, "day by day," gets thrown around a lot here, and I think, has kind of lost its meaning. However, it's a very important principle, especially for those getting down on themselves about "sobriety streaks."

If you're having trouble racking up days, try shifting your focus away from the big count, and worry about staying clean for the day. Sure, use the 90-day application, but really keep it in the background as a data tool, something to look at every now and then. Success is measured in millions, but achieved penny by penny. If you're down about your streak, then not only is it not doing its intended function -- keeping you sober -- but it's also hurting your progress.

And if a day is too long a yard-stick, shorten it. The real victories here are intangible.

i watched for 2 hours today - wife was out of house all day.

started with my phone - using an app to get to twitter then i used my non filtered browser on my tablet.

most i have watched in a while.

i would be hypocrite to say now - i have to stop, etc. - bec. then i should have just stopped.

i am powerless when my yetzer/lust tempts me .. that i know.

if i would have gone to devaluing this could have been avoided - a nice first step anyway.

nothing else to do now - will daven...

had my phone last night in bathroom and knew i should not take to bed but i did anyway. looked at stuff and then m*D.

unfortunately, i did it on the CE browser and didn't care about my one friend that still gets the reports.

... so today i asked two more ppl - a closer friend and the Rav of my shul if I can add them to the report list

i also asked my friend to remind me to keep phone away when i go to sleep ...

i also struggle with being involved with a shul where i obviously see a few young women.

(I dont mean to trigger anyone here - just putting it out there for myself) obviously it is a nisayon as u can imagine ... i guess i should try to daven for them (like Dov says) instead of treating them like objects only thing is it's harder than dov's examples 'cuz I dont even care abt the shiksa in the street - this situation is a little diff. ...

kul tuv everyone - off to the west coast for a couple days w my wife ...

just to add two things - young women in shul

I am an intern at the shul so i l'm there pretty often, see the same people, and try to (am supposed to even) interact w everyone. it's not like i can just run home.

shiksa's - I don't care = i even look away from the peurto rico lady on the street - i am not attracted by that ...

This might be an overly obvious question, but one of the foundations of the recovery process is letting go and letting G-d take control. How are you doing in that area?

yes most definitely let go and let G-d !! Prayer is a critical tool for recovery!
