

This Site makes it hard for me?!?!?!?!?

Posted by ein yeush - 14 Oct 2009 21:31

Ok, i have a problem. a big one. i feel confused and unsure of what to do...so i figure i might as well ask all of you guys what you think. who knows? maybe you'll be able to provide me with the perspective i need.

I've been following the advice on this site for a long time now

I CANT FIGHT LUST. I NEED TO LIVE FOR HASHEM AND NOT MYSELF.

cuz thats the only way i can really overcome this.

but here lies my problem. every single time i log onto this site and read the forums or every time i sign up for the wall of honor....im naturally thinking all these impure thoughts.
i know that by trying not to think about lust i will only succeed in thinking about it...

but how do i stop? how can i just read the chizuk and focus only on the chizuk and not fixate on the shmutz?

wow, even reading that to myself sounds messed up.

im viewing the solution as a catalyst for the problem!

and i know thats bad.

can anyone help me come up with an way to NOT think like that??

anything guys...anything you've got is better than what i've got now....

HEYY

SLOW DOWN

WE NNED TO KEEP IT EASY AND SIMPLE

BY BEING ON THE FORUM YOU WILL GET CHIZZUK

TO FIGHT

AND ALL WE ASK FOR IS "RESOLVE"

THATS IT

TAKE BABY STEPS

maybe you're right...i dunno.

you're saying something to the effect of --ok, you cant win all the time...so now will be one of those times when you'll fall..its not mutar and its NOT ok...but if you just beat yourself up about it...then you're definitely not going to grow....i hear u, i do but the question remains how do i know when i'm being honest with myself or when im just giving in...

im not fighting what you're saying, im just trying to understand....

Reb b, I think his problem is something else... He is saying that the talk on the site and forum causes him to think about it... i.e. living in the problem. That's why Dov always says, we need to live in the SOLUTION, not dwell in the problem... In Chizuk e-mail #602 we quoted Dov:

thinking about how the addiction works and making a study of it, is an entirely different matter to me. It doesn't deserve all that much attention.

You see, it all depends on what I want. If I want to keep thinking about lust, or why I lust, then I'll be in it and I tend to do more of it. If, on the other hand, I just want to finally get free of it, then I'll find someone safe to dump it to, ask My Best Eternal Friend to help me out, and then focus 100% of my brain and body energies on thinking about and doing whatever it is that I am supposed to actually thinking about and doing. And most of the time it's "giving" - to my clients, wife, children, whoever.

I am not telling you or anyone what to do, just admitting (again) that I can't think myself into right behavior. I can only live myself into right thinking. The analysis of it all is very tempting, but letting go of it and doing right does me a lot more good.

R' B that was by far the most inspirational post i have ever read.

you took all your posts and smushed them together.

thanks R' B!

p.s. is R' B a nickname?

can i call you that?

what if i start calling you RavB which turns to rebbe?

can i call you that?

I hear wat you're saying.

im a psych major so EVERRRYTHING i do i analyze and analyze and analyze...but i hear wat you're saying move on. be firm and stick to your resolve and move on.

and you know what? ur right. i am feeling kinda down today. that is definitely why its harder. but ur right, Rebbe Nachman always says that a person who sins has his Yetzer Hara make him "conveniently forget" all the good things he's done that day. i need to remind myself that im really not that bad, and with that thought, elevate myself and continue climbing from where i've left off.

i think that might be a key thought for me. guardureyes is right. my problem IS like he said and what he quoted from Dov.

but i need to keep my head in perspective and go do some hitbodedut...

oyy thank u!!!

all of u!!!!

I only noticed this thread now, so you've been spared my input until this moment!

Ein Yeush, no one here will judge you negatively for even a second. Addiction has no mercy and no boundaries and everyone here knows that.

My suggestion to you, is START POSTING. I see you have basically been a silent spectator until now. Once you become part of the action, Im pretty sure your perspective will change. You will be so busy being a part of the solution, that you wont have time to dwell in the problem iyH.

7up,

this is only coming from kutan, so don't let it get to your head, but your posts of late have been especially on the mark.

Your intuition and wisdom continue to amaze little me.

"only coming from Kutan" is one big compliment to me. Mr. Kutan loves hiding behind his little red collar and looking meek and helpless, but the 'little Kutan' I've come to know pretty well, is
