Common theme of many posts is just how important it is to have quality real friends. I think most of us already know that viewing the bad stuff or worse is the antithesis of appreciating people. So... don't know if there are any threads out there yet on this, but thought I would start one to share ideas and tips on how to take practical steps to develop and foster healthy relationships.

A friend is a person that can help you grow look out for those who are willing to help you.

My best friends are my chavrusas. I think that to really bond with someone, it's good to share your thoughts, share how you think about things, argue with each other. You really get to know you chavrusa pretty well and develop a strong bond in a relatively short time.

So my tip is to find a chavrusa!
