

Breaking News - Start of New GYE Forum!!

Posted by Kedusha - 22 Oct 2009 15:48

Chevra,

This is big news, and you heard it here first!

It has been called to my attention that there is a great need for a forum for moderators who are addicted to modifying other people's posts, an addiction that is gaining widespread recognition in the psychiatric community.

And so, Guard Your Edits was born! There's no need to suffer any more! Learn how to read other people's posts, with all their mistakes in spelling/grammar/punctuation, and sit back, smile, and do nothing!

Learn the best-kept moderator's secret: the laziest moderator on the forum is, generally, the most popular one!

I have joined the new GYE forum and, you may have noticed, my edits have become fewer and further between. My apologies to anyone I offended before I began working on

I have an addiction where I have ToAdd my two cents worth to all threads.

Sounds very similar to this edit addiction.

My friends tell me it's just because I'm a Gemini and we have to have the last word in any conversation.

But I don't believe this. And I told them that.

They gave me a phone number for a support group. The person on the other end of the line just kept on telling me the time. Yea, I know, time to move on and get a life I replied..... it went on for ages.

Funny...I thought this was a recent issue. I didn't hear anyone saying that they had more than a few days of sobriety here...
