I can't take it anymore!!!!!!! Posted by aaron - 30 Oct 2009 01:50
Hey again.
I fellagain. this is so annoying. I can't believe I keep fallign this often. its so sad. On one hand I want to have charata(regret) and on the other I'm worried it will bring me to depression (another y'h I"m fighting).
I have k9, but due to password issues I keep falling. My roomate is now in control and helping me through, but its so sad.
the worst part is that its just become so mutar in my mind. I used to be scared when I did it. Now i can't even think once i start. like i know i'm doing it, but i can't stop. i can even be forced to distract myself, but it doens't go away. like tonight i started to fall, went ot class, came back and finished the job 1 and a hlaf hours later almost!
i think i want to make a shevua, and i think i could hold to it, but i don't know how to properly phrase it.
I want it to protect me from p#$% for 10 days, but i don't know how to phrase it without falling into the questions of :
1 - how does one define p$%#
2 - will accidentally looking at something not tznius be an issur deorayta?
3- is it appropriate at all?
any advice would be greatly helpful.
in need of help. Aaron

Please read the Attitude Handbook, Principle #1. You will understand better what you are UP against.

An addiction is not simple to break. But we must or we will end up destroying our lives in this world and the next (not to mention our future family) Addictions don't get better, only worse
For the rules about what is considered a fall or a slip, see rule #8 on this page.
Before you make any vows, make sure to read through this page and this page carefully.
The most useful vows are usually if you vow to do something you really do not enjoy doing if you fall. Like a bus ride to the beis Hakevaros to daven by the kever of a tzadik, or to say 50 kappitle tehhilim or do 100 pushups within 1 hour's time, etc

May Hashem be with you!
