

Help. Please

Posted by shmirashachaim - 19 Apr 2016 12:54

Is there someone I can call? I'm going through a very rough time. Litteraly about to fall and act out. Got a new phone with no filter.. Please....

=====
=====

Re: Help. Please

Posted by shmirashachaim - 20 Apr 2016 20:29

eslaasos wrote on 20 Apr 2016 20:08:

If I may get "religious" with you, I'd like to share some Pesach thoughts. It's 3 days to Pesach, when we can tap into the spiritual redemption that is the mehus of this Yomtov. But maybe you feel like you're too close to acting out to be a part of it.

Four fifths of the Jews died right before the redemption, so you'd think it was all the tzadikim who were left, but we know that even after the redemption, there was still a kitrug against them that ????? ?????? "?" ?????? ?????? "?". So how were the surviving fifth different and deserving of the redemption? Rashi tells us the difference is the ones who died didn't want to leave. (as heard from R' Avrohom Schorr).

As long as we keep our sights on recovery, and are actively working on it, we can be zoche to a miraculous redemption.

Some won't like this post, but hopefully someone will find it inspiring, particularly shmirashachaim who this is primarily intended for.

Thank you and yes i find that meaningful. I want to be part of anything that would be considered a spiritual redemption. I'm not sure if i will be completely "redeemed" from this, not having to ever look back and instead serve Hashem blissfully and care free. Really don't know. What i do know is that redemption can be a perpetual thing that i keep up, consistently overcoming human nature and making sure that i don't revert back to my old ways. what do you think?

and yes. I want to be free from this. I want it so badly. I hope i'm part of that 5th.

=====

=====

Re: Help. Please

Posted by shmirashachaim - 20 Apr 2016 20:30

and thanks for the chizuk

=====

Re: Help. Please

Posted by eslaasos - 20 Apr 2016 20:56

shmirashachaim wrote on 20 Apr 2016 20:29:

eslaasos wrote on 20 Apr 2016 20:08:

If I may get "religious" with you, I'd like to share some Pesach thoughts. It's 3 days to Pesach, when we can tap into the spiritual redemption that is the mehus of this Yomtov. But maybe you feel like you're too close to acting out to be a part of it.

Four fifths of the Jews died right before the redemption, so you'd think it was all the tzadikim who were left, but we know that even after the redemption, there was still a kitrug against them that "???? ????? ?" ???? ???? ?". So how were the surviving fifth different and deserving of the redemption? Rashi tells us the difference is the ones who died didn't want to leave. (as heard from R' Avrohom Schorr).

As long as we keep our sights on recovery, and are actively working on it, we can be zoche to a miraculous redemption.

Some won't like this post, but hopefully someone will find it inspiring, particularly shmirashachaim who this is primarily intended for.

Thank you and yes i find that meaningful. I want to be part of anything that would be considered a spiritual redemption. I'm not sure if i will be completely "redeemed" from this, not having to ever look back and instead serve Hashem blissfully and care free. Really don't know. What i do know is that redemption can be a perpetual thing that i keep up, consistently overcoming human nature and making sure that i don't revert back to my old ways. what do you think?

and yes. I want to be free from this. I want it so badly. I hope i'm part of that 5th.

I guess it depends on how you define redemption.

Is it possible to serve Hashem care-free? Maybe the nature of service requires overcoming difficulties, but the redemption is in the attitude. Or maybe the redemption is in the context of the difficulties. I feel much of my nisyonos are the result of the choices I made for too long, and the result is my current level of serving Hashem is far from what it could have been. Hashem can change that. Until He does, this is where He wants me to be, and I want to hold on to the desire to serve Him as best as I can in whatever situation I'm in.

Thanks for getting me to think it through.

=====

Re: Help. Please

Posted by shmiraShachaim - 21 Apr 2016 04:11

Nicely put

=====