

Isn't it true that semen is the light of the eyes?

Posted by herewegoagainn3 - 20 Aug 2016 18:52

---

Isn't it true that semen is the light of the eyes? so if you have had too much nocturnal emissions( I have been keeping track) like maybe 20 from last year(I was 19 and am now 20) and my eyes are getting blurry and I do wear glasses, does it mean that loss of semen is the cause? I mean, I do use the internet a lot during the day(not for porn), but for music and other things. I mean, if I did stumble or had a desire to watch, I would have come straight to this forum first thing and start posting. I wouldnot hesitate to write out all my urges, my desires, and all my fantasies, even if one day if my future generations wanted to know what kind of a person I was in the past, it will be traced on the internet, but at least I was honest. I sure hope that God will bless me with a child somewhere down tehline as I realize that semen is now sacred and that I should not have done what I had done. It is necessary for fertility and stuff. I mean, low sperm count is automatically little or no chances of fertility, right? I don't know. some ancient asian belief systems would have you believe that, but most medical journals suggest otherwise. I just need to stop watching porn subconsciously. I only watch it long enough to ejaculate and then close down my browser. Due to the loss of semen, I feel like there are entities around em. i feel a bit heavier than usual. Usually whenever i lose semen, there is always extra energy or something around me and I feel awful.

=====
=====

Re: Isn't it true that semen is the light of the eyes?

Posted by herewegoagainn3 - 20 Aug 2016 19:03

---

herewegoagainn3 wrote on 20 Aug 2016 18:52:

Isn't it true that semen is the light of the eyes? so if you have had too much nocturnal emissions( I have been keeping track) like maybe 20 from last year(I was 19 and am now 20) and my eyes are getting blurry and I do wear glasses, does it mean that loss of semen is the cause? I mean, I do use the internet a lot during the day(not for porn), but for music and other things. I mean, if I did stumble or had a desire to watch, I would have come straight to this forum first thing and start posting. I wouldnot hesitate to write out all my urges, my desires, and all my fantasies, even if one day if my future generations wanted to know what kind of a person I was in the past, it will be traced on the internet, but at least I was honest. I sure hope that God will bless me with a child somewhere down tehline as I realize that semen is now sacred and that I should not have done what I had done. It is necessary for fertility and stuff. I mean, low sperm count is automatically little or no chances of fertility, right? I don't know. some ancient asian belief systems would have you believe that, but most medical journals suggest otherwise. I just need to stop watching porn subconsciously. I only watch it long enough to ejaculate and then close down my browser. Due to the loss of semen, I feel like there are entities around em. i feel a bit heavier than usual. Usually whenever i lose semen, there is always extra energy or something around me and I feel awful.

Let's face it. I feel like at one point, God should just help me recover so that I couldn't keep bugging him with all these prayers I say to him all the time. I mean, I used to think I was praying to God when I was praying in a christian sense such as in Jesus name or in Christ's name or through Christ our Lord. Little did I know I was committing idolatry in the eyes of Judaism. I mean, both Islam and Judaism think Christianity is idolatry. I realized that now and I gave it up. However, I just can never see myself becoming Jewish in that I do not keep the Sabbath because I do work on the weekend and I do go out with people on the weekend and I do not see myself wearing a bunch of hats and stuff. I know that sounds a bit disrespectful but I cannot see myself lighting candles. No one in my family is Jewish and there are no synagogues in this predominantly Asian neighborhood. Churches, yes, but synagogues, none to be found. There are no Jews in my neighborhood.

I now have lower back pain and stuff. See what happens when one is being stupid? I grew up in a very hating, very judgmental home, and if I made the slightest mistake, I would get criticized and I would feel so...dominated. I feel so awful.

I feel like when I told my father about masturbation he said you see, a pervert has aged prematurely. I mean think about it. I have lines on my forehead but that may be due to stress I had as a teenager over obsessing over the guilt that I watched porn. I would pray till 3 in the morning and not feel like God has forgiven me. You see how that had taken a toll on my immune system and how I was always tired in class and always feeling depressed. On days when I had masturbated, people would point their fingers at me or they would laugh at me or they would ignore me. I feel like there were evil entities influencing my life at the time. I really did. I mean, I was so moody and so unhappy on those days. I went to the restroom and cried and stuff. I cried a lot. Quite a bit. I really did. I feel like porn has been used to make me cry and stuff. From now on, I am not going to feel any guilt. I feel like the minute I stop asking God for help, those spirits are going to follow me and stuff. Just saying. Sexual ones. I hate it. I really do. Why can't they just leave me alone? Leave me alone and I will be fine. Now that I think about it, why do I even have to pray to get rid of sexual sins? Why didn't I just tell my parents in the first place and the sin would have been topped right then and there. That would have worked. I had to hide and lock up my doors.

=====
=====

Re: Isn't it true that semen is the light of the eyes?
Posted by Singularity - 07 Sep 2016 14:30

---

Hi.

So I see you're not Jewish. Jewish Law also links the loss of semen to the loss of the "light of ones eyes". Though it doesn't mean "You're bad!" - if it was completely unintentional. On the contrary, there are certain circumstances where a nocturnal emission is actually a good sign (if you're interested, check out the Talmud, Tractate Yoma, 88a. It's just an ingrained reality. I'll explain:

At a certain point in the Torah, Moses gets angry and subsequently cannot remember / teach a particular relevant law. It doesn't mean he was bad. It was actually a righteous anger, justified even in the eyes of G-d for a purpose. But the reality of life is that anger is a trait that leads to forgetfulness. As much as gravity is a law - no matter how righteous your intentions, if you jump off a building you will die - so too is this. Think about it. When you get angry, you see a pinhole of the full picture. You intentionally "forget" the other details to pursue your justified rage. And G-d acts measure for measure. So what's the measure for measure of semen loss to the light of one's eyes? Not sure. That's one you can think about.

Prophecy has ceased from the world. We don't know why things happen to us. Wrinkles may or may not be caused by emissions. But to beat yourself up about it gets nowhere. It gets you lazy. Keep doing the right thing, no matter how wrinkly you get!

You say you wish you didn't have the urges and that G-d should take them away from you so that you could stop bothering him with prayer? G-d WANTS prayer! a relationship! If you had no urges, then you'd never talk to Him, ask Him to help you in any way. So think about it that way.

And for the urges. They're life's challenges. Tailor-made for you to attain your perfection in this world. And perfection is a relationship with G-d. wherever you may be. However low you may fall.

Also Judaism isn't all about wearing hats. It's about the black jackets too.

No, just kidding. You also need some sweet leather shoes.

But in all seriousness, like I stated previously, it's all about a relationship with G-d. The stronger a relationship is, is based on the giving quality of those involved. Non-Jews have seven commandments to which to adhere. Jews have 613. By definition Jewish people can achieve a much closer relationship with G-d due to the added responsibility and sacrifice. So the "not working" on weekends is a choice. To whom do you wish to direct your giving? G-d, or the CEO? What if your wife asked you to enjoy the weekends with her. Now it's between the CEO and her. Now you can taste the choice a little more, I think.

But we do not encourage conversion. You can live a perfectly fulfilling life adhering to the seven Noahide Laws:

1. No Promiscuity
2. No Idol Worship
3. No Murder
4. Proper Judgement and Courts
5. Not eating limbs of live animals
6. No stealing
7. No cursing the name of G-d

Hope that was insightful. I hope the site will help you grow and help you help others.

=====
====