

How to deal with a terrible, disturbing experience

Posted by David26fr - 16 Mar 2017 09:18

I have a very big situation to deal with... And I am in a very big stress.

Yesterday evening, I was involved in a dangerous situation.

There is a building near my house, and in the second floor there are abandoned offices where some vagabonds are living.

When I was coming back from maariv, some people called me from the windows of this office : "Call the police, please ! Quick !". And many noises of fighting and things broken came from the inside.

I wasn't believing them and I was afraid to be involved in something. I watched around me somebody to help me : nobody.

But another guy came through the windows and told me : "There is a guy that is near death here ! Call the police, the fire-fighters ! Quick !"

And it seemed to be life or death situation, so I called the police...

I stayed some minutes by phone with them. Meanwhile, people were running in the street around me, some of them with injuries.

And suddenly, the entire floor began to burn with high flames and smoke coming out of the windows.

Some guys literally jumped from the windows to escape, and some of them were half naked.

There were screams inside the burning office.

Police and fire-fighters arrived after a few minutes. And many many people came to watch, and some were taking movies to put them on YouTube >_