Do you have unfiltered access to the internet? And what sort of places? Public restrooms?

Welcome. It should be with hatzlocha. It doesn't really matter what your desire is for, just how to in general get control or surrender control. Read the handbook, the forums, and see what speaks to you.

Mzl,

Correct me if I am wrong. I don't think fleshing out all details about someone's particular fetish on a public forum is healthy for anyone.

Samwine,

We all think we are some unique piece of thrash. We knock ourselves down as being the only insane person dealing with this. I've got my own fetishes to deal with. However, I have figured out I don't need to deal with it, I need to deal with life. Stress, work, family, bills, frustration, etc...

I wasn't fleshing the details. I was just trying to understand if he is getting in harm's way.

i found the analasis of mzl healthy obviously without going into gory detail .it helped me to feel no longer alone . i have a proper filter on my home pc but when i fell last month i bought a cheap tablet and then threw it away . any ideas how to stop that sort of fall .

the other part of this addiction has caused me to hang around in town very late at night causing damage to the next day etc there are obviously many inappropriate sights and later i cannot understand how i could have overlooked how wrong it is for me to even have gone to such places

Not sure why you call it rare? Is it bc you've done much research? More likely it's because you feel it's rare. Which makes you feel badly about yourself, how disgusting you must be if you like something so "gross".

I found myself oddly attracted to that genre on porn sites as well. I kind of just went with it and figured everyone has their thing that they're into. Which is true.

For me at least I've really only seen actual porn once or twice in the almost 4 years I've been married and I found that with distance this fetish (if you want to call it that) faded to the point that ldk if I'd even find it exciting (probably would). But the point is that I don't feel I need to see that specific genre anymore. I'm still struggling with movie and TV show scenes, but there's no urinating in those and I haven't felt that I'm missing anything.

In short, my opinion is that if you put some distance between you and porn, the longer you go without it the less you'll need your "strange" fetishes.

I just want to point out that it very much actually DOES matter what one's fetish may be. There are fetishes that can get one in to trouble with the law; if someone starts trying to peek on people in places that they can expect privacy, they can get. Arrested.

Same with other types of exhibitionism and voyeurism. And so that would make it more urgent to seek help for.

Or worse.
