

At the brink of cheating - can I hold myself back?

Posted by passion - 26 Sep 2019 14:45

My wife is great in most areas. Thing is, she is moderately attractive and I also feel I don't get enough sexual passion from her. I have a goyish beautiful single girl who is actively trying to get me in bed with her. It is my own fault that I started with her but now I feel I have to be like Yosef Hatzadik to hold back.

Hanging out on the brink of cheating, can only end one way.

Yosef Hatzadik didn't just "hold back". HE RAN!!

Not only am I religious, I am a very well respected and learned man. I excel in almost every area of my life but deep down inside lies the turmoil that not a soul is aware of.

Welcome. Sorry to hear that. I struggle similarly. "Moderately attractive" was a reason that you look elsewhere, the reason she doesn't provide passion, or what? By the way, how do you know that this beautiful princess is tryin' to bed you?

By the way, a thread just started the other day about husband's who have cheated. Maybe post there and ask them for tips (on how or why not to cheat, hopefully).

Godspeed to you

Can you send me the link for that thread? Couldn't find it- new here and not so familiar. Thanks!

And regarding your question- it's a combination of both. I am convinced that if my wife was the passionate type and really excited to be with me I probably wouldn't be looking in foreign pastures.
