

Starting Again...

Posted by Lou - 21 Dec 2020 22:15

Hi, I have posted in other threads but just wanted to start this new one to get this of my chest. I guess i am venting more than anything else. To make a long story short, I have been a struggler for years with these issues. This includes watching and also chatting with online relationships etc. BH over the past few years due a variety of reasons things have ~~greatly~~ improved in this area. Don't get me wrong. It wasn't fixed but the issues were less serious (trying to avoid triggering {embarrassing} details. As it still was certainly an issue eventually I recently joined GYE and working on the 90 days etc. I have started and failed more than once but I understand that is part of the process. What is really getting to me and is actually confusing to me is that my most recent fall was to a level worse than I have had in a few years! In other words, when I was working on the issues less officially i was staying away from that level. Now that I am working on really cleaning up my act I have stooped back to my really low levels Why?? It definitely was some Hashgacha Pratis in this as I was faced with a nisayon I have avoided in the past. Is Hashem telling me that now that I am stronger I should be able to deal with nisayon?? Well, I didn't...

Any feedback is welcome!

The gentech filter by default blocks any app that has a mature label, which includes 99.9% of all chatting apps. Believe me I've tried..them all.

Thank you very much! As I said BH I am fully filtered and this is not a daily struggle for me due to that. I just was seeking other ways to address the issue. Mostly as Grant said it is the same lust issue as everything else. But, it just has that extra part that makes it so enticing, endearing and DANGEROUS!

Have you ever been to a kids birthday party? It can be a 5,6,7,8 year old etc. The birthday boy/girl always feels sooo big! After all they are now 9 years old! We tend to humor them and reinforce this notion. This is a little bit how I feel on here now. I am all proud of my 9 day streak,yet that is literally just a kid around here. Now,this is not by any means my longest clean streak I have had in my life,but this is the first time I am doing it on here in a more official and real sense. I think I will still walk around as the proud,oblivious birthday boy,but just with a little bit of perspective that I am still just a kid. Just one disclaimer and I don't really think this applies to me. Sometimes the numbers are misleading and one persons 5 days are as chashuv as a different person's hundred days etc. But as I said I don't think that is the case with me.

I was reading around some of the literature on this site and I found something that was very eye opening to me. I am paraphrasing here and using this in a bit of a different direction than the author might have meant.The person(I assume they are some sort of expert) wrote that sometimes the high that comes from seeking porn etc can be more from the notion of closing the door on the world and enveloping yourself in this fantasy world with no stress and real life problems.They called it the "bubble". This can sometimes be more of the high that is being sought after than the actual pleasure. What I will say now will sound strange but hear me out. I am wondering if I am using GYE as my new porn. Kosher porn maybe but porn. How so? Going on GYE for now is a secret that no one knows about. I come here and I chat with anonymous people that are not involved in my every day stresses. I can kinda let my hair down hair and not be judged.etc . It is my little secret world with a bunch of wonderful guys.Now, possibly even if so, it still is the correct thing as it is replacing the really negative behaviors.It is helping me in my battle with the yetzer hara. Or maybe my issue is the escape and if I work on that without this, I would be better off.I don't feel like I have been seeking a major escape but somehow what was written there did resonate with me. I don't know. Just food for thought for now.

Please feel free to share ur 2 cents or maybe even a few dollars would be nice.

Congrats on your BIG day 9! To many more!

You remind me of what it says in 'ethics of our fathers' .. loose translation "a old barrel with new wine, a new barrel with old wine"

Keep us inspired!

Very valid point. It's discussed around here quite often. I'm going to request R'HHM respond when he has a chance. He helped me when I was plagued by a similar question.

If the answer is yes you have to ask yourself; is that a bad thing?

It depends on what you are hiding from. Many of us (myself included) go through this in one form or another, for me GYE helped me help myself and others but can also be an escape from real life. When I am bored it's a great place to hang out but when I find myself being taken away from other important things in my life (family, learning, etc.) then I know I am using it in an unhealthy way.

Ideally we need to focus on filling the void with something real. The tried and true method is working on developing long term relationships, commitment, being part of something bigger than ourselves and giving to others.

Yes, this topic has been debated many times, these are my two cents.

All the best,

Wilnevergiveup

Thank you for your response. I have been thinking along those lines. Even if I am using it as an escape here and there, overall it has been having a positive impact in my "real" life. I just have to be on guard that it shouldn't overtake any important parts of life. Certainly is easier to control my "urge" to go on GYE than it has been to control my other urges in the past.

I would like to mention something here. Possibly this is not applicable to all people. Possibly others will also disagree with this. I am mainly talking to myself, as usual. I think we have to realize that in this battle against the Yetzer hara there are some behaviors that are normal and some that are sickly. The normal behaviors may be assur and should be worked on but they are "normal" yetzer haras. I will give a mashal... When it comes to aveiros related to speech. It is normal for a frum person to be tempted and nichshal at times with saying lashon hara. It is not normal for that same person to use nivul peh (I mean real Nivul peh). He has to work on both issues but one issue is the struggle of a lifetime and is part of daily existence. The other is something that must be stopped immediately. The same is true with our inyan. There are some behaviors that are normal for a person to be tempted by and perhaps even nichshal once in a while (I am not giving examples so as not to give an impression that they are muttar, but think of scenarios that come up when in the supermarket, street etc). However, other behaviors are sick and not normal. Sitting with your pants down staring a (semi) nude behaima for your own pleasure is sickly. Other examples of that as well... Many of us are working on ridding ourselves of the sickly behaviors. It would be optimal if we can be perfect and rid ourselves of the normal behaviors as well. However, that may just be asking for too much and will just end up crashing. Shmiras einayim is not a new Nisayon. Klal Yisroel has been working on this for generations. You can't expect perfection.

Is there a nafka mina limaaseh for all of this? Really not, as we have to work on all of our nisyonos. However, the main difference is with our attitude when we slip. If we slip with normal behaviors, realize that you are "normal"! It shouldn't lead you to give up and say I am already nichshal so might as well do the sickly abnormal behaviors. They are on a whole different level and can't be compared to each other.

Thank you for listening to my rant.

BH, I just want to post a boring post saying that everything is going well with these Inyanim.
Thank you Hashem!

My latest thought process is that my long term goal is clean forever. My short term goal is clean 90 days. My shorter term goal is just to be clean for more than a month. Most years I have been totally clean for approximately a month starting on some random Ellul day until after YK. So would be nice to beat that.

Thank you all for your chizuk either here or other threads that I have read.

Have a great day!

Many guys report (myself included) having preliminarily becoming "addicted" to GYE. Let me reassure you that it is relatively temporary. Yes, GYE participation sort of replaces pornography, by giving an escape bubble to enter when the day was too stressful. One enters an anonymous world with pretty constant activity - at almost every time of day due to participants from most time zones. This excites them and creates a drive to frequently check for new posts, and see how many thank you's were received. However there are differences. One - many of us do reveal our identities to others, so it enters reality. Two - most chevra are searching very much for some sort of tikun and now for the first time they are using Internet to do good - to stay clean, and help others stay clean. This drive is healthy. And three - the good news is that as exciting as GYE can get, it will simply never be able to hypnotize the viewer in the way that "other things" do. So eventually, usage normalizes to a little here and there when one has some time. All in all, it is a healthy transitioning method to move away from improper viewing.
