

Web chaver

Posted by cordnoy - 29 Dec 2020 14:08

They have made some changes to their model. What is your opinion?

I am a chaver to one fellow now, and have been to others over the years. I am hereby volunteerin' for anyone here as well.

But, here is my last email to the web chaver brass:

Dear admin,

I received another "report." So, as long as I don't see two people copulatin' on the screen shots you send me, I should just assume that everythin' is ok?Thank God I'm only a chaver for one and he is doin' ok. I see nothin' positive from seein' those screen shots. One appears to be a sonogram, I hope it's from his wife, as they recently had a baby. Another is of two kids playin', and a third looks like a cartoon. One sports as well. The rest, I have no idea.I truly would like to help this fellow, maybe by knowin' how much time he spends watchin' sports and TV shows, but I can't.I understand business models change, hope it was for the best.I'll try to do more research.

So, GYE fellows, what say you please?

Thanks

=====
=====

Re: Web chaver

Posted by Looking_to_improve - 29 Dec 2020 14:46

I only joined it recently, what did their reports used to show?

=====

=====

Re: Web chaver

Posted by cordnoy - 29 Dec 2020 17:08

I only joined it recently, what did their reports used to show?Thank you.

Is it helpin' you?

There used to be details, such as time spent on apps, web, chats, etc. Also websites were listed.

=====

=====

Re: Web chaver

Posted by Markz - 29 Dec 2020 21:27

See www.covenanteyes.com/support-articles/screen-accountability-report/

If the email subject line is "review..." then pay attention to it, otherwise just kot

=====

=====

Re: Web chaver

Posted by Looking_to_improve - 29 Dec 2020 22:44

cordnoy wrote on 29 Dec 2020 17:08:

I only joined it recently, what did their reports used to show?Thank you.

Is it helpin' you?

There used to be details, such as time spent on apps, web, chats, etc. Also websites were listed.

So far yes, on one or two occasions it's been a deterrent, I haven't fallen since I've downloaded it. I just need to make sure my chaver continues to check the emails. (I don't know if he fully realises/ knows why I've got it, and if it be important for him to know)

Does your chaver have another filter installed as well, maybe this might be conflicting with the reports?

=====

Re: Web chaver

Posted by cordnoy - 30 Dec 2020 00:26

Looking to improve wrote on 29 Dec 2020 22:44:

cordnoy wrote on 29 Dec 2020 17:08:

I only joined it recently, what did their reports used to show?Thank you.

Is it helpin' you?

There used to be details, such as time spent on apps, web, chats, etc. Also websites were listed.

So far yes, on one or two occasions it's been a deterrent, I haven't fallen since I've downloaded it. I just need to make sure my chaver continues to check the emails. (I don't know if he fully realises/ knows why I've got it, and if it be important for him to know)

Does your chaver have another filter installed as well, maybe this might be conflicting with the reports?

There are no reports any longer, just blurry screenshots.

=====

Re: Web chaver

Posted by Changing - 30 Dec 2020 01:50

If you go on the webchaver website you can generate the old style report. It gives you that option. The screen accountability report is what they email you.

For me personally is has been a much bigger deterrent. In the old style, you could watch porn on twitter app and it would not pick it up. Now it will.

=====

Re: Web chaver

Posted by Hakolhevel - 30 Dec 2020 04:23

The screen shots are good, but they can also miss alot (unfortunately I know from trying) I think they should be using both the old report and the screen shots

=====