

Forming a Group (looking for people)

Quick Recap

Hello all,

Long time no see. I've been doing much better for now. but still cant stop completely. I would say web chaver / covenant eyes has REALLY helped.

The thing about web chaver is there is an accountability partner receiving weekly emails of screenshots and sites. I don't know if I've hacked it successfully and if I fail... someone gets an email and I am quite embarrassed. The guy I signed up for mine is a Rabbi so yeah... pretty embarrassing.

But he's not exactly an accountability partner and he doesnt "understand" what it is to feed in to the lust. He's also not available the way a partner would be. And new devices enter my life and come and go and it can get hard to block it all while living in this modern world. And so I fail here and there. I used to just focus on Porn, but now I have included masturbation. (PM)

?I had a partner from this site once and he just stopped chatting and disappeared one day...

As a developer I can crack through most filters. I jump around from this forum to another one and try my hardest but every few weeks theres a fail even if just for 10 minutes... and I rarely go back to the forums... Or i come back to the forum after the fact.

Forming a group

I noticed the best is having accountability or people you can reach out to instantly.

So I am trying to create something like that. As a developer I decided to use my skills to create a place for instant chat and availability anywhere while staying anonymous.

I created a slack group called Jew Anonymous.

I'm looking for a few people who want to join and test it out. It's simple and unlike whatsapp does not require a phone number. You can make (and should make) a fake email address to use and stay completely anonymous.

Slack is a chat app used in many offices. There we can help each other and check in daily and make sure were doing ok.

. The bot can help you keep track of your last relapse date and lets you know how many days you have been clean.

Slack does require internet and probably would be best used as a mobile app on a smart phone. That way you have it with you on the go.

?I'm looking for some testers who want to join and help each other. Open minded people who are willing to try and help each other, check in almost daily or weekly and be respectful.

About Me

It's good to join a group where you feel like the people there understand you.

To that end, I am a moderate (i think they call it modern yeshivish... i dunno i don't prescribe to labels lol) single jew trying to stay away from pornography and masturbation.

I also created a slack bot with some code

Hashkafa-wise I'm a regular guy. sometimes I wonder if I fit on the forums here lol.

To be honest, I pray, learn daily, do mussar and daf yomi, and work from 9-5 creating websites. However, I also watch some tv here and there, at least what i feel is appropriate, although lately I have nothing to watch and the news has become a tv show of horror...

I read, play video games, and write code and do nerd things.

Please let me know if you want to join. Only taking a few people at first.

Thank you.

A short bio about me:

I'm chasidish.I sometimes slip and watch a show here and there.

I am a nerd when technology is involved. I love figuring things out.

I work 9 - some random time. Sometimes 5, 6, 7, 8, 9, 12, 15...

By the way, you can join the GYE chat on Rocket Chat. It's a web or mobile app. You might find a better crowd around there.

Hi,

I would be very interested in joining this group if it's still around. As you mentioned one of my biggest struggles is with not being able to have a group I can reach out to when I need to speak to someone, so this would be extremely helpful.
