

is Parev really Sane?

Posted by parev - 20 Jan 2025 01:39

due to the various stiras people have asked in my posts i want to clarify my position

[feel free to argue, but at least know the beast you are fighting]

There are 2 issues we frum yidden deal with.

Lust and Aveiros

When the 2 subjects get confused on these forums I get confused too.

Rating the aviros scale has little to do with sobriety [eg pilegesh vs mz"l] similarly dosh bifnim vzore bachuz has little to do with recovery.

of course as frum yidden we wanna keep halacha, but we have to be clear if the issue is lust or halacha.

for example if i am scared of the dark, having sex in the day has nothing to do with lust

i was annoyed at a post rating aveiros, instead of treating the disease [see that thread how i clarified an alternative way of phrasing the point]

similarly i quoted a post of difrenchiating between addicts and baalie taavo however on the thread when someone asked a halachik shaalo - clearly NOT fueled by lust - I i see no reason not to post a GYE article. The poor guy is traumatized from all the machmir sh*ttos, when all he was looking for some direction.

The post I quoted didn't even say its preferable, just gave some context and he can approach it in a manner that is suitable for him.

Why are we all getting bogged down thst he might ch"v be miekel in a derabbanan??

i hope this is clear feel free to comment in the box below - and don't forget to hit the subscribe button.

being serious about recovery doesn't mean we cant have fun [who of you can brag that he hasn't touched his penis in almost 50 days when his wife is a nidda after birth and he has a plethora of girls he could sleep with at whim?]

=====
=====

Re: is Parev really Sane?
Posted by eerie - 20 Jan 2025 05:59

My dear friend Parev, I'm sorry, but the very distinction you make is absolutely what does you in

When a guy wants to be with his wife on Nittel, and we tell him don't, which is clearly a question of not more then a minhag that some kehillois seem to have, a guy comes along and says "BTW, having intimacy on Nittel is preferable to P and M", the entire question was not about lust, and his words make perfect sense to every sensible guy, all of a sudden you lost it on him, and halacha isn't the issue?!?!?

Yet, when a guy wants to do oral, which we all know that it's all about his lust, all of sudden we are pulling out any heter from any anonymous kuntres?

My friend, let's get the yotizrois straight. Chaim Oigen is a sensible, smart, wonderful person who made a normal point. And if the main issue we should be thinking about is lust, not heter v'issur, then oral should be absolutely way off for you.

My friend, be proud of yourself for your great accomplishments! Happens to be there are plenty

=====
=====

Re: is Parev really Sane?
Posted by chosemyshem - 20 Jan 2025 15:31

parev wrote on 20 Jan 2025 01:39:

however on the thread when someone asked a halachik shaalo - clearly NOT fueled by lust - I see no reason not to post a GYE article. The poor guy is traumatized from all the machmir sh*ttos, when all he was looking for some direction.

Yeah the bolded part is just very likely not true and what confused people.

But the clarification makes sense.

=====
=====

Re: is Parev really Sane?
Posted by parev - 20 Jan 2025 17:05

see #429586

=====
=====