

100.... or not

Posted by yerushalmikugel - 23 Mar 2025 21:31

Hi everyone

I'm not sure where the right place to post this is...

I'm a married yungerman mid 20's. I've been struggling with p&m for almost 15 years....

I finally got a clean month.... then 60 days.... then 90 days... then 400- fell on day 100.

It was like falling from the 100th floor... and it really hurts.

I really dont want to go back to how things were. I was a much better father, husband, friend, HUMAN BEING the last 99 days.

I I'm looking for chizuk on how to keep the momentum and not let myself be pulled back down. More than the down itself, I'm worried about being able to keep going and pick myself back up.

Any tips/chizuk?

Shalom Brother and Welcome,

First off, incredible that you reached 100 days! Sorry to hear you hit a bump in the road.

You didn't fall off the building, you merely tripped on a step. You can stand up, brush yourself off, and keep climbing to floor 100+1.

Don't think all your efforts just disappeared. Everything you worked for and gained the last 100 days (fall included) are resources that you keep and use to keep going higher.

Stick around, connect with the amazing chevra here, and you'll BezH be right back on the path.

If you are looking for some additional positive chizzuk, perhaps check out The Battle of the Generation for a positive outlook in this struggle. It's available here on GYE

<https://guardyoureyes.com/ebooks/item/the-battle-of-the-generation> (and also Amazon).

Hatzlacha and keep climbing Brother, from floor 100 and onward.

Hey,

Try not to let one day take away from the 99. Each day is its own challenge and day 100 was very hard. We need to learn from our mistakes and move on stronger. You are not the same person 100 days ago and that fall of one day didn't change the fact that you have grown, it just gave you an opportunity to grow stronger.

I know how you feel, I had a streak of 108 days and then fell, now BH I am at almost a year clean. Just remember that porn and masturbation doesn't actually make thing easier, they just make things worse in the long run, and life is so much better without it which I am sure you can feel after 99 days clean.

Keep on Trucking, One Day At A Time!!

Like when I started, I saw these guys that had long streaks, like over 100 days and then they fell and I thought to myself that that must feel so uuuuggggghhhh More because in my head it makes it feel like "will I actually ever really get this out of me"...

My friend I did 49 days and then fell. but just keep at it while learning from your mistakes , it gets easier over time and your YH subsides to an extent.

My new chizuk for falls:

My 1.5 year old is learning to climb the stairs.

This morning she fell.

Badly.

Like blood and stuff. (BH I wasn't home).

She got a ~~pickle~~ wafer to calm her down.

I came home.

Me: What happened?

Kid: Fell stairs! Wafer!

Me: So what did we learn?

Kid: 'Gain!

[Postscript: Me: scratching my head in confusion.

Maybe it was the wafer??]

Hey

Welcome to GYE!

Sorry to hear about your daughter I hope she's ok.

You raise a really important point, fall = reward. However, they are not comparable.

Wafers do not create anxiety before and after eating them nor do they negatively damage your emotional well being vs porn which creates terrible anxiety before not to consume it and afterwards when we do wafers which is food is necessary to have in life (perhaps not wafers) vs porn which we don't need to get through life, the proof being the many millions of people in the world that do not use it and are perfectly happy.

There is a fantastic new book which GYE have just put out called Mindshift, its been completely life changing for many people including myself. Check it out

You are 100% correct. Sorry if my post was misleading.

BH she's great. Tough kid!

I by no means was trying to compare p&m to wafers.

I was merely trying to bring out the attitude that one can 'get over' the fall and try again. For me, this is the hardest part of my struggle (see above).

The answer is in your question. A keshar with another climber so he will pick you up.
