Amazing!!

I'm so happy for you!

I remember (Pretty recently) when I hit my first week clean and then 2 etc after not going more than a few days clean in the last year or so and not more than a week in the last few years, it feels amazing!

But it's not very Geshmak to fall after all that, I always struggle with focusing on the times that I didn't do it as opposed to the fact that I just fell.

The YH really tries to get me on that one, that's basically his main tactic.

Get up and keep going! I'm inspired that you're able to celebrate after falling.

Don't just celebrate for a "Few seconds", be excited! You did 2 weeks! You're a tzaddik!

Get yourself a chocolate bar or something, make a L'chaim!

Hatzlocha Rabba!

with regards to having difficulty seeing the big picture, two things that I find can be helpful. One is to have a pocket size calendar that I marked down which days were good or not(and a few more detail details,) second is to use the progress tracker on the app in addition to being able to see your streak. You can also see how many days out of the past seven or the past month and the past 90 days and six months were clean and then besides for working on my streak, I can see what percent of days were good and try to steadily climb that up a little

it can feel pretty good to see the percentage is going up overtime showing that you are winning 50% of the time 60% of the time 70%, 80%, 90% and BH

!Wishing everyone a great Shabbos

let's keep on fighting
