In the attempt to keep to GYE's new boundaries, I strongly suggest that you remove all information on how to access this chat area. The information you posted is public for all to see, disregarding if they are male or female.

A better route would be to simply announce that you've created a chat environment, and that any users who are interested in joining should contact you privately for instructions.

We once had a chatroom on our website, but it was free from a website that had some bad links and we decided to take it down. When we have some more funds, one of the first things I'd like to do is set up a solid GYE chatroom system, men and girls separate of course. It would be linked to our database and know if you are male or female.
