

two observations

Posted by MaalinBKodesh - 14 Jan 2010 19:59

.

=====
=====

Re: two observations

Posted by silentbattle - 15 Jan 2010 17:48

Like rage says...

It's important to know that everyone has tests in this area, although for some of us, the tests are more difficult and extreme.

And we can all move forward.

=====
=====

Re: two observations

Posted by Kollel Guy - 16 Jan 2010 22:25

I noticed on the home page: "A website for Jews struggling to maintain their moral purity in today's world." I think it used to say "a website for religious Jews...." (unless I'm imagining things). Major props for the change, I wanted to acknowledge that. It's more inclusive and the emes really is anyway that ALL Yidden are ma'aminim bnei ma'aminim, though some aren't yet reflecting that reality in their actions.

I actually think a non-religious jew would be more influenced by the sincerity of the GUE members than he would be anywhere else.

=====
=====

Re: two observations

Posted by silentbattle - 17 Jan 2010 01:13

It's also a good support group for this particular issue. And more than anywhere else, I think we're all very much aware of how much everyone is a work in progress, and far from perfect - and we can appreciate someone's successes anyway!

=====

=====

Re: two observations

Posted by Holy Yid - 17 Jan 2010 01:20

I am faund of quoting the Goan who says that everyone, except the six who died without sin, fell in some way in this area. That is who ever lived from Adam until Moshiach comes.

=====

=====

Re: two observations

Posted by MaalinBKodesh - 17 Jan 2010 02:02

Who are the six who died without sin? Is this a gemara?

=====

=====

Re: two observations

Posted by Ineedhelp!! - 17 Jan 2010 02:55

LeivTahorBeraLi wrote on 17 Jan 2010 02:02:

Who are the six who died without sin? Is this a gemara?

I believe its either the first mishna in perek cheilek of Sanhedrin or its a gemara there. I'll check it up...

=====

=====