

GYE - Website vs. Program

Posted by Kedusha - 02 Feb 2010 04:40

---

What is GYE to each of us? On the one hand, it's a website. On the other hand, it is a program, which employs multiple tools (the two handbooks, chizuk e-mails, the forum, etc.) to help us go into recovery.

Until I read the Rosh Yeshiva's Haskama, I probably viewed GYE as a website. An extremely helpful and comprehensive website, but a website, nonetheless. However, having read the Haskama (more times than you can imagine - I get chizuk every time I read it!), I now view GYE as a comprehensive program to help us go into recovery and keep us there.

Is it possible that those who are more successful are those who view GYE as a program (and invest time and effort into following the program), not merely as a website?

www.guardyoureyes.org/?p=2118

=====
=====

Re: GYE - Website vs. Program

Posted by shemirateinayim - 02 Feb 2010 04:46

---

truthfully, 99% oif this site, for me, is the forum. I need help, and I got no patients to read the hlp, I want people. So, sorry but I only use the website option of the program. But I'm maskim that this place is a 'far-encompasing' program (we aren't holding by all-encompasing)

=====
=====

Re: GYE - Website vs. Program

Posted by bardichev - 02 Feb 2010 06:12

---

Well for me its the forum

When I started

I read every story on the site

And every morsel of the site

I also read every single threadf on the forum

Well now the forum is my network

That kEeps me truckin

=====

Re: GYE - Website vs. Program

Posted by imtrying25 - 02 Feb 2010 11:52

---

Bards dont you get it?? Kedusha is just using this as an excuse to post the haskama again!!! :D
:D :D :D :D :D :D :D :D :D :D

Kedusha im just KIDDING!!!!!!!!!!!! :D :D :D :D :D :D :D

I dont think theres anyone on this forum whos done as much as you!!! We owe you so much!!
Thanks!!!

And although i do basically use just the forum part of the site, i d realize the importance of getting everything else it has to offer. But i need time for that. Maybe bain hazemanim when i have a couple of extra seconds on my hands ill get through everything else.

=====

Re: GYE - Website vs. Program

Posted by Kedusha - 02 Feb 2010 12:27

---

imtrying25 wrote on 02 Feb 2010 11:52:

Bards dont you get it?? Kedusha is just using this as an excuse to post the haskama again!!! :D
:D :D :D :D :D :D :D :D :D :D

=====

Re: GYE - Website vs. Program

Posted by imtrying25 - 02 Feb 2010 12:29

---

:-*

:D

=====

Re: GYE - Website vs. Program

Posted by Kedusha - 02 Feb 2010 12:33

---

Dear IMT,

~~Not true, IMT - I'd post the Rosh Yeshiva's Haskama without any excuse!~~

=====

Re: GYE - Website vs. Program

Posted by Kedusha - 02 Feb 2010 12:33

---

If the forum alone works for someone, that's fine. But if, over time, the person keeps falling, maybe it would help to view the forum as part of a larger program that GYE offers. As the Rosh Yeshiva highly recommends, we should avail ourselves of all aspects of the program [if doing less hasn't been enough for us]

=====

Re: GYE - Website vs. Program

Posted by UTS - 02 Feb 2010 12:37

---

Kedusha wrote on 02 Feb 2010 04:40:

What is GYE to each of us? On the one hand, it's a website. On the other hand, it is a program, which employs

Is it possible that those who are more successful are those who view GYE as a program (and invest time and effort into following the program), not merely as a website?

www.guardyoureyes.org/?p=2118

Would think so.

=====

=====

Re: GYE - Website vs. Program

Posted by shemirateinayim - 03 Feb 2010 07:46

---

true

=====

=====