gma, thanks for updating us! KUTGW!

If I can just ask you to please continue posting each new post under your original post over here. It keeps things much more organized if each person has their own thread. Every time you add something to your thread, everyone will see that there is a "new" addition and they will check it out. But there's no need to start a "New Topic" for each post...

We should have somewhere on the website some instructions for everyone on how to use the
