

Can an addict be a Chazan for the Yomim Noraim???

Posted by ovadia - 17 Aug 2010 09:01

I have been asked to be a Shliach Tzibbur on the Yomim Noraim. As would be expected this is because in my "normal" life I am a respected member of the community and my level of Yiras Shomayim is not in doubt.

But underneath I am an addict and if I would be given the chance to decline on those grounds I would. The problem is that I can't say "Sorry, I can't do it because I am nichshal in m*** and I look at p*** when I can!!"

So, my question to the oilam here is, how would you feel if you knew that the Shliach Tzibbur is a lust addict?

Please, although here at GYE everyone is giving chizuk and being positive, please try and respond to this truthfully. My personal opinion is that, even though this addiction is an illness, and can be regarded as almost an oines, still these are serious aveiros and I am unworthy of the position.

When I was in yeshiva in 1986 my rebbe approached me and asked me if I would be willing to be a chazzan in a new basement shtiebel a gvir had built in his home, after deciding he would no longer attend the conservative shul in his town. I told my rebbe that I did not feel worthy, thinking to myself, as long as I had my m--- issues how could i be the 'Cohen gadol' even for a group of 15 sincere jews coming to be metaher.

My rebbes answer shocked me.

He said, because i dont feel worthy means I am the right person for the job. In other words, anyone who has a full ego and does not worry about his maasim should probably NOT be a shliach tzibur. if you go up with a broken heart, then that is precisely the frame of mind Hashem finds acceptable.

This is the chassidic approach, a broken ego reaches the highest places. In the meantime, i am flying high with GYE, have not touched myself since i joined and my davvenning is better.

Did you ask a Shaala?

We can ask a shaala without giving our names too. When I phoned Harav Aharon Feldman Shlita, all I told him was that I am a yungerman from GuardYourEyes.

Disclaimer:

This is not being posted as a definitive psak that everyone must abide by. Each potential shliach tzibbor may judge his specific circumstance based on the opinion of his Rabbi.

BTW the reply you received from the other Rav you asked was entirely different.

Well, this comes to show the truth of the above disclaimer! :D

IMHO the answer is not to give up the Amud, especially if people will be disappointed.

The answer is to say next year I will do it and I have the next ten months to keep myself clean and work on myself to be a fitting Chazan and let me tell you, if you do so, your davvening will crash through all gates and you will soar.

By saying no you may even be telling yourself ok so now I dont daven for the amud, so whats the big deal if i just let go a bit here..... the yetzer Horah is a sneaky fellow...you gotta judge where the motivations come from....

i think what u r looking for is an answer to a halachic shailoh. Unfortunately,it is not possible for most of us to share the true nature of our misdeeds with our Rabbis.

Maybe the shailoh can be posed to one of the "GYE friendly" rabbis?

Here is someone who's got his head on straight.....at least straight enough (unlike the bent shofar) to respond correctly.

Raboisai,

Thank you all for your responses and insights.

Although I accept the idea about Teshuva and that being in the right direction is what counts, I think that an important distinction needs to be made.

It is one thing on a personal level and in one's personal relationship with HaShem to know that despite everything He still loves me and that the path to teshuva is open etc.

However it is another thing to use that cheshbon for others. Being a Shliach Tzibbur on Yomim Noraim is to be the representative of the tzibbur in their communication with HaShem, and one cannot negate the severity of these issues, addiction or not.

This is the reason why I have more of a moral conflict in this particular issue than in others and I definitely agree with Elya that we would not be so considerate of someone who had just been convicted of embezzling money.

I'm going thru this one by one, but this is the sentiment.....all the others are simply cheerleading the recovery fellow on, but they don't get to the heart of the matter.

I suggest that there's a difference between a chazn who's done aveiros bein odom lechaveiro to bein odom lamakom. I remember reading recently that a kohen who's done all kinds of aveiros can duchen, but if he's got a kepeida with someone he can't.

Maybe part of the reason for the distinction is that Hashem understands and forgives - but people don't.

Some we remember.

Some we search for.

And others we peruse the archives.

You can edit it as you see fit.

In any case, I think the real reason by birchas kohanim is because it is a Bracha of shalom. You can't give a Bracha of shalom if you yourself are not seeking shalom.

Also, the kohanim are not serving as the emissary of the tzibur; they are giving a Bracha.
