

Back after a while

I am posting here because there's not much else I can do. I was doing great with a telephone sponsor and achieved 62 days sobriety. I was over the moon. Then, a close friend confided in me about a relationship he had fallen into - unfortunately in sordid detail. I crashed down and haven't been able to get up since. This is going back three months. There is no group anywhere near where I live - Jewish or otherwise - and I am really despondent. I know yiush is a terrible word but I cant see a way forward. I have every conceivable filter and WebChaver on my PC but I am always scheming and conniving to get through the blocks. Like a real addict. Although i am really frum, Torahdik and all that, religion just doesnt seem to speak to me at the moment although I was inspired when speaking to an anonymous guy who says that he managed his first year by just pleading with G-d to stop him lusting. Not sure if the cr** is blocking me from G-d or the other way round. I love my wife, I love my kids and I guess I surely love myself. Just why cant i stop then???????? G-d please throw me a line. I wanna go getta life!

I gota say as a frequent thruway rider, the kind of trucks I see here & the speed of our trucking & forget about the language of our truckers here, are not the same as what I see there

I'm already not sure who's the trucker & what's the truck & where are we trucking

Ok I'm sorry for my non-sense here I was just surrounded by too many trucks today for too many hours & I'm very tired

In any event, let's all keep up our TRUCKING

i imagine that people looking innocently for a trucking company to haul their goods type "trucking" into google and end up with GYE.

maybe Guard should put a redirect on the homepage to a real trucker and make commissions off the trucking referrals, raise much-needed $

If it is one day at a time it is not about climbing a mountain or wanting to succeed. Love the jewel.

Keep on trucking, till the next rest stop.

Another day BEH. One day at a time. Every day is a Jewel.

[quote="Harav Naftali Jaeger Shlita, Rosh Yeshiva, Yeshiva Sho'or Yoshuv (b'shem the Chofetz Chaim, I think)]

Generally, when we buy in bulk the price goes down. A large sack of potatoes is less than double the price of two smaller sized sacks.

Precious stones, on the other hand, are the opposite. If a 1k gem is valued at $1,000, then a 2k jewel won't be worth $2,000, it is far more expensive than that! The larger the volume, the more scarce it is!

Two blatt gemoroh does [u]not[/u] have equal value to 'One Blatt' multiplied by two! It is [b]much[/b] greater!!!

[/quote]

& the same may be suggested in our [i]inyan[/i], [b]"every day is a jewel"[/b], 1/2 a day is a smaller jewel. [A "90 days Jewel" really [color=white]sparkles[/color]!]

It is worthwhile to remember that by postponing an 'urge' we aren't just stalling the Yetzer Horah; We are creating Jewels that are exponentially far more precious!!!
