I have a folder on my desktop for Rage's good posts unfortunately it's still empty (Sorry I didn't mean that) actually that last post was spot on.

As for dov, you're full of cr*p, no matter what you say you're a tzaddik in my book.

And I have a folder on my desktop for posts from....oh, never mind.

Love y'all!

Really.

>>im starting to get excited about the prospect of a long sober streak which is really bad for me to do...need to accept that i can only live one day at a time...

Focus on the 3 seconds in front of your face...

tomorrow, today will be yesterday.

(huh? )

How about forgetting about the three seconds in front of our faces and focusing on what G-d wants for us?

i couldnt agree more that any sobriety is good sobriety

For me, even if not every day was as great as I would have liked, the more distant I got from the garbage, the more clearly i was able to see that it was garbage. And as always, staying clean is always worth it.

@Dov.

Hi Dov.

God is the ultimate goal... but in those 3 seconds, its like drowning..

if is wise they will call out to God for help -

if not they just have to wave their arms, and desperately pray that God send someone to help them.

I heard a good vort from this weeks parsha.

God says to Moshe - to everyone of a heart of wisdom, I'll give wisdom.

so the question is - where does the original Wisdom come from?

I heard 3 answers:

1. yireh shaymayim
2. ratzon
3. effort

when a person puts in the above, Hashem gives them a gift wisdom!

do you think the same holds true addictions? (if we replace wisdom with Recovery! )

Where does the first recovery come from?

Seems that if a person increases their Yireh Shaymayim, has the Ratzon, and is willing to put in the effort, then Recovery will come to them as a gift, too

"It's never a bad time for taking a cheap shot!"

- Marvin Gaye

(just kidding, maybe he said it maybe not, but he got shot by his dad, so he probably was that kind of guy!)

I think there's definitely something to be said for the realization that while we may not be sure about god, we're certain of one thing - that turning to Him is better than turning to Lust.

Don't think R' RAge meant he isn't sure about G-d, I think he's quite sure on a rational level, it's just so hard to really live that way, sigh.

And Dov, I should adopt that as my motto.

as for me, praise be to the gunslinger up top, i have now equaled by second longest streak, as sad and meager as the streak has been...i also have been progressing over lust for the first time since my four month sobriety...just starting to shake off them cobwebs now....

KOT

Nice work!!

That's exactly what I meant.

And rage - every day is one more day of frsh air, one more day of cleaning your head...and it's a lot less painful then pouring draino into your ear!
