I hope thats a good thing! GYE seemed much more serious and focused before 7yipol showed up.

In all seriousness, I'd be interested in hearing what you mean exactly.

Make that "sent from Heaven".

7Up, I think the lightness is GOOD. I am sure Rabeinu Guard agrees.

There is plenty of seriousness in your remarks that slips in while I'm laughing. And the laughing helps my yH not realize it!

I agree with kutan!

It alternates, i think. Someone might start of with asking for help, then a few people write back more "serious" posts, then it goes into funny "one-liners", or into jokes that have been going for some time ("sushi" f.ex.), then back to more "serious". That is i think a very healthy way to do it.

I don't think kuton needs to change his name as long as he Switches to Godoil when the Y"H try to knock him telling him that hes a small nothing.

Exactly.

I saw this somewhere:

"Asaai lechoh rav ve'histaleik min hasofek." (Pirkei Ovos I).

One pshat, [slightly] modified, is: "Make" i.e. "Consider" yourself a great rov, tzadik and do not do even something which you have doubts about. A lesser person may not have to be concerned.

Chas Veshalom Chazak! I havent felt bad by anything anyone here has ever written.

I continued my thought in my own thread today.

May Shabbos Nachamu bring us all a great big hug from Hashem!

Chazak,

I hear you.

Guard has absolutely no problem with me posting anywhere I wish. (See my Mechitza thread)

I am getting the overall feeling that majority do not mind although there are 1 - 2 exceptions. Im glad I asked so I wont accidentally hurt anyone.

I will probably continue posting as i already do, and if anyone feels uncomfortable, I ask them to let me know.

Hey N.M.H!

We were having a grand old time kibbutzing around on your thread, and then we noticed you slipped out the back door!

If you are online these days, could you drop us a line on how life is going? We take downs too (can't have ups without them!).

Very best regards!

kutan
