

Filters

Posted by yankeld - 28 Jul 2009 12:55

Does anyone have Covenant Eyes filter/software?

Is it any good?

I had netdogsoft but I it stopped working and the company won't help.

=====

Re: Filters

Posted by the.guard - 28 Jul 2009 13:21

See a few options on this page: www.guardureyes.com/GUE/Filters/Accountability.asp

I know one guy who uses www.x3watch.com and I'm his accountability partner. It seems to work very well!

=====

Re: Filters

Posted by ninetydays - 28 Jul 2009 15:17

I had covenant eyes for a while and I can say 3 things about it.

1) It monitors and rates everything you do. If someone who you would be embarassed in front of is reading the reports you have nothing to worry about. When choosing an accountability partner be sure to find someone who is a bit tech savvy and can know if you were playing around but got around it.

2) I found a way around it. I called them up and they said they were working on the problem. But that was only the accountability software - no the filter.

3) Often the reports came back saying "close review suggested" when in truth I did nothing wrong. My wife was the parter and she got a bit "uneasy" until she actually went to the sites that the close review originated from.

I now have k9. I have never gotten around it althought I have found some sites I wish were blocked. I can block them as time goes on.

Anyhow all the best for now.

ninety

=====

====