

Mechilah and Appreciation

Posted by cordnoy - 13 Sep 2013 15:54

---

not always do I say the right things

not always did I treat another with the respect that he deserves

not always is, my advice given, the correct one

not always do I display the proper patience for another

at times, my words can be hurtful

at times, my comments can cause shame or anger

at times, my intentions are not pure

at times, my tone or expression can be triggering

I regret and feel bad for any harm or discontent that I might have caused here, and I ask mechilah from each and every one of you.

Additionally, I would like to take this opportunity to thank God for finding this chashuve site for me, and I'd like to thank Him for dragging me out of the mud and filth, and keeping me clean these past three months; ninety days.

Although I am not the guy who realizes it and speaks about it, I am told that it is indeed Him, and that is why I am expressing my thanks to Him. Although this is not bein adam l'chaveiro, I plead for mechilah from Him for not recognizing Him as much as I should.

Lastly, each and every one of you deserve so much credit for all that you are accomplishing for yourself and for others, and thank you so much for your care, concern, compassion, criticism that you display for me.

May God be with us all each and every moment. Don't look behind you; don't look ahead. He is here with you, me, us, right now.

=====

=====

Re: Mechilah and Appreciation

Posted by tryingtoshteig - 13 Sep 2013 17:14

---

That was beautiful, Cordnoy. Your thoughts were almost identical to mine (and probably everyone here).

I also feel sometimes my words to others on this forum and/or chat rooms may have been too harsh at times, and may have caused hurt to people I have never even met before. My advice may have been off base. My patience may not have been enough. My preconceived notions of others' personalities may have been false.

To anyone reading this, I apologize if any of these items applies to you and I hope you do not hold anything against me.

May we all be zoche to Selicha, Mechila and Kapora and a Gut Gebentched Yohr.

=====

=====

Re: Mechilah and Appreciation

Posted by Dr.Watson - 13 Sep 2013 17:35

---

I'm sure I've written things I shouldn't or in a way I shouldn't on GYE and I want to apologise to everyone I've upset.

At the same time I am moichel anyone who upset me because I know that all the comments directed at me were intended to help and were for my own good.

gmar chasimah tovah to everyone and may we all be zoche to a kaporoh for all our aveirohs, to see moshiach soon, and be blessed with all good things.

=====

=====

Re: Mechilah and Appreciation

Posted by inastruggle - 13 Sep 2013 23:50

---

Same here, I apologize to anyone if I said or wrote anything harmful here or if I insulted anyone in anyway. Please forgive me.

I forgive anyone who did anything to me (though I can't really remember anyone who did)

=====

=====

Re: Mechilah and Appreciation

Posted by cordnoy - 28 Sep 2014 17:58

---

It's amazin' how many things stay the same.

There are some differences though....

not always do I say the right things

not always did I treat another with the respect that he deserves

not always is, my advice given, the correct one

not always do I display the proper patience for another

at times, my words can be hurtful

at times, my comments can cause shame or anger

at times, my intentions are not pure

at times, my tone or expression can be triggerin'

I regret and feel bad for any harm or discontent that I might have caused here, and I ask mechilah from each and every one of you.

Additionally, I would like to take this opportunity to thank God for finding this chashuve site for me, and I'd like to thank Him for dragging me out of the mud and filth, and keeping me clean these past sixteen months (albeit, with three horrible falls in between).

Although I am not the guy who realizes it and speaks about it, I am told that it is indeed Him, and that is why I am expressing my thanks to Him. Although this is not bein adam l'chaveiro, I plead for mechilah from Him for not recognizin' Him as much as I should. This Rosh Hashanah, we began a conversation.

Lastly, each and every one of you deserve so much credit for all that you are accomplishing for yourself and for others, and thank you so much for your care, concern, compassion, criticism that you display for me.

May God be with us all each and every moment. Don't look behind you; don't look ahead. He is here with you, me, us, right now.

=====
=====

Re: Mechilah and Appreciation

Posted by newaction - 02 Nov 2014 17:57

---

Hey Cordnoy , KUTGW !

=====
=====