To be loved by a parent if...if and on condition ..you get good grades you treat your siblings well you stay religious you make a lot of money.

That works best if ..you get good grades you treat your siblings well you stay religious and you make a lot of money

Let us examine Yitzchak's love of Eisav :It was great But on some level it was conditional -that Elsav provide "tzayid"(versus Rifkahl simply loves Yaakov)

Avraham, Eisav's grandfather, had a great deal of chesed. He loved everyone UNConditionally

Perhaps Esiav was a recipient of that unconditional love from Avraham Perhaps Avraham's death- the end of a source of an unconditional love I love you if you are wild don't learn so well "I just love you Eisav"

Perhaps the big tough Eisav we learned about craved that needed that and missed that sorely

Then Avraham was niftar That might have been a part of why Eisav went on his rampage as a fifteen year old Sex and who only knows what .

Yitzchak Aveinu was of course a great tzaddik However let us look at conditional versus unconditional love

The smoker's cigarette ALWAYS comes through with unconditional comfort , Snickers always satisfies So too sex. It provides the ""love " And I double quote for a reason

Wives friends coworkers and projects are so conditional temperamental and inconsistent. Eisav wasn't so strong.

The loose women and victims of horrid abuse would satisfy ALWAYS FOR EISAV

They say Don't walk in the ways of Eisav harasha. Life in the long run with all its conditional aspects that come with its happiness is a REAL and blessed thing! Let us treasure all our real
