I disagree

Apparently you're clean for 6 days without it, which would point to the fact that it's not the "Schar" that's beneficial for you

If you could prove that "Schar" helps in a serious way (e.g. Half of 90) then we have what to discuss

In other news: IMHO there's a fallacy that is portrayed with things like Taphsic which is open to transgression (according to its rules) and 90 day chart which includes an invitation to fall on day 91. As Dov says, these are only tricks to help someone start.

Whats the fallacy?

That partial "teshuva" is available.

When in fact, GYE offers tools to 100% sobriety. Relapse can happen, but the first thing a newcomer needs to sign to is

???? ??? ?????? ?????? ??? ???????? ??????????
