Nice!

L'maasa, not to take away from the inspiration here, Kedima is a din in kavod. Everyone has a chiyuv to honor talmidei chachomim and has to give them the kavod of "cutting the line". Kavod is not applicable to retzicha. Either because the torah is not mchayav that level of self-harm in order to give kavod, or because it's not a question of kavod when determining who should die.

It's like money - a talmid chacham has kedima when giving tzedakah to some extent, and I should do business with him, but there's no chiyuv for me to give him my money so he can be the rich one instead of me (with the exception of a kohen gadol, but that's an entirely different din).

(Not that what you or amavekesh wrote isn't true. It's just strikes me as a very dachuk teretz.)

The ???? of the ??' is ??? ????? ????? ????? ???? ?????. It's ???? that if it was possible to know who's more ?????, there would be a ??? ??????. It's just that it's impossible for us to know. Why do you think that it's a ??????

???? ??? ??????? ???? ?????

There's two sources for priority of one life over another - mai chazis, and R' Akiva's din that chayecha kodmin because of v'chai achicha.

Mai chazis has some implication that there's a priority in people's lives (based on blood color?) and we just don't know what the priority is. Vchai achicha implies that when it comes to life you always have priority. I don't know how to reconcile these two gemaros.

Great point. And no need to hedge with ????? ??? ??????? ??? ????

But certainly the dinim of precedence of talmidei chachomim are dinim of kavod and have limitations. Would you have to give more than 1/5 of your assets to ensure the priority of talmidei chachomim or of a kohen?

???" in ?? : ????? seems to say that it is a ?????. The ??? ????? in '??' ? makes it a ?????? ????????
