

I thought I can do this alone.

Posted by realsimcha - 11 Mar 2011 20:07

This is really hard for me. I feel nervous and uncomfortable as I am posting this . I have been struggling for over twelve years. Twelve nightmarish long years. Some have been better and some have been worse. All have been painful. I have never reached out like this before. Its really hard for me, as I always convinced myself that I can do this alone. I was wrong. I hope that I can get what it seems like others on this website have. Strength. Simcha. Clarity. I don't have any more strength for this addiction, and I want to face the world around me with simcha and without feeling embarassed. Can you help?

Day 44: Busy hectic day getting ready for Purim. A lot going on. Trying to stay focused on whats important and not get distracted with whats not ... or worse. Going into the day thankful for renewed clarity and focus and wishing for serenity and "realsimcha" for us all.

Day 45: I never thought I would be posting on a website on Purim. Purim was always a good day for me [it was always after Purim that I had the issue...] But today I am posting so that I keep to my commitment, to remind myself that I am vulnerable every day. And that this issue is not going away. May the holiness of this holy day protect us for the months and years to come! A freilichen Purim!

I am just now going through cordy's posts from march 23 and he was mamish drunk with happiness. If taanis esther was that happy, kol shekain purim itself.

Day 46: Past shushan purims have been a blur. A while back I even started a thread asking the oilam how to deal with the ups and downs of Purim. [I am sure Markz will find it :)] Today was different. Up for davening, taking care of responsibilities despite that post purim feeling. Now, looking back, I find those posts childish. Like I didnt get it. I feel like responding to my own post: "you dont get it. Its not about how you feel. Its not about mood swings - everyone has stuff like that - its about realizing that if you start slipping you will wind up destroying your life. So this goes beyond some relatively insignificant hangover headache." Oh my, I hope I am not being too hard on realsimcha 2011. And I wonder what realsimcha 2021 will say to me....
