Welcome Kvetched.

At a siyum we say ??? ????? ??? ????? ??? ????? ???????? ??? ??? ????? ?????? ?????? ???

The question is asked, what does this mean ??? ?????? ???, don't they work and get paid? The answer is that if someone builds a house and if when he comes to get paid, the house falls down he won't get paid, even though he put in a huge amount of effort to put it up. With learning torah (and other ruchnays matters) it's different. You can work through a sugya, prepare a whole shuir based on it. Someone then asks a question that destroys the whole chiddush, you still get schar because it's the ????? the effort for which one gets rewarded, even if it produces no results.

The same is true here. For six months you kept clean you will get schar for that and that can never be "wiped out." It's the constant working on ourselves that's the key. Regardless of whether we ultimately succeed. Indeed, the "effort" for you now is to get up and keep on working, despite the fall.

Hatzlacha. You've come to the right place.

glad to hear your feeling better.It is so crazy that when we are in the throes of lusting we are obsessively thinking about it and we have no life what so ever.but still when we see that trigger it causes that automatic chemical reaction that makes us thing we are finished and just must give in,it has to be like that otherwise we never would of had that thought or looked at that site or felt that feeling of desire.

That is so right Mecha, I know that the trigger is stress and I know that when the stress builds I have to be up front and face it...AND RESIST IT !

Your'e a nice bloke Mecha !

Because stress, when it builds up, is pain. Lust is a pain-killer. It's an escape, too.
