Generated:	18 August,	2025,	09:19
------------	------------	-------	-------

is life worth living??
Posted by hurtandinpain - 05 Oct 2011 20:31

I'm new here. i wanna ask anyone with SSA, is it worth living life this way knowing that you are different and will never be happy?? or did you find ways to be able to live through it. I'm 31 married and have been struggling with this for 20 years. I was mollested by an older brother for many years as a child and teenager. does that have anything to do with this? its becoming harder and harder to live this way. have had my ups and downs trying to stop aqcting out. had sometimes where i stopped for a few months and then went back to it full force. now im clean since before slichos. wonder how long it will last. i think i would rather be dead then i see how selfish i am!! i have a beautiful lovely wife and the most adorrable kids and they dont

====

Re: is life worth living??

Posted by alexeliezer - 10 Oct 2011 15:34

·

It sounds like you need to take some concrete steps toward recovery. Stop fighting. Start doing. Consider joining a phone group. Read through the GYE handbook. Study the 12 steps and start working them.

Detternering for Wurself. Your real self. Not your addict.

====

Re: is life worth living??

Posted by hurtandinpain - 10 Oct 2011 16:58

in crazy pain today. i dont have the strength to deal with this SSA. its draining me. if it wasnt for my wife and kids i would end life already. i made enough damage already and it will only get worse if i dont have the strength to do it. just end the misery and deal with the punishments that are waiting for me in shamayim earlier when as apposed to live for another 50-60 -70 years and rack up more and more aveiros.

====

GYE - Guard Your Eyes Generated: 18 August, 2025, 09:19 Re: is life worth living?? Posted by gibbor120 - 10 Oct 2011 17:03

Are you in therapy? If not, do yourself a favor and get some ASAP! We are here to listen, as always. ______ Re: is life worth living?? Posted by hurtandinpain - 10 Oct 2011 17:12 didnt help Re: is life worth living?? Posted by alexeliezer - 10 Oct 2011 17:35 hurtandinpain wrote on 10 Oct 2011 16:58: i dont have the strength to deal with this SSA. You've just arrived at step 1 -- admitting powerlessness. Well almost. Because then you say it's draining you. Which means you're trying to fight it. Head on. It hasn't worked up until now. Are you ready to stop wallowing in self-pity? Are you ready to make some real changes? Are you ready to begin recovery from your addiction?

Re: is life worth living?? Posted by hurtandinpain - 10 Oct 2011 17:43 Generated: 18 August, 2025, 09:19 its not that im fighting it. i cannot live this way.

====

Re: is life worth living??

Posted by Gevura Shebyesod - 10 Oct 2011 18:06

Dear Hurt,

I feel where you are, i've been there too. Our temptations are EVERYWHERE, there is no escape. Those first few weeks I was literally crying from the pain of trying not to look, not to want, not to think. I wandered around in a daze, jsut trying to look down at the floor and singing sad nigunnim to myself. I took chances crossing the street in traffic, thinking "Hashem here's your chance to end it and take away the pain". Like you, it was only the thought of my family that helped me pull through, I could not bear to think of what they would suffer if something bad really happened to me. And of course reading all the stories here on GYE (I wasn't posting yet then) reminded me that I can get through this, I'm not the first one to try.

So to steal a phrase from "their" propaganda, "It gets better!" Once you get through the initial withdrawal it will not be so bad. For me it has sort of settled down into mainly a shemiras einayim problem. As long as I dont see stuff i'm OK. But when I get triggered (and again, they are everywhere!) it starts coming back and I have to push it back down. I don't know if it will ever go away completely, it will probably be a lifelong battle.

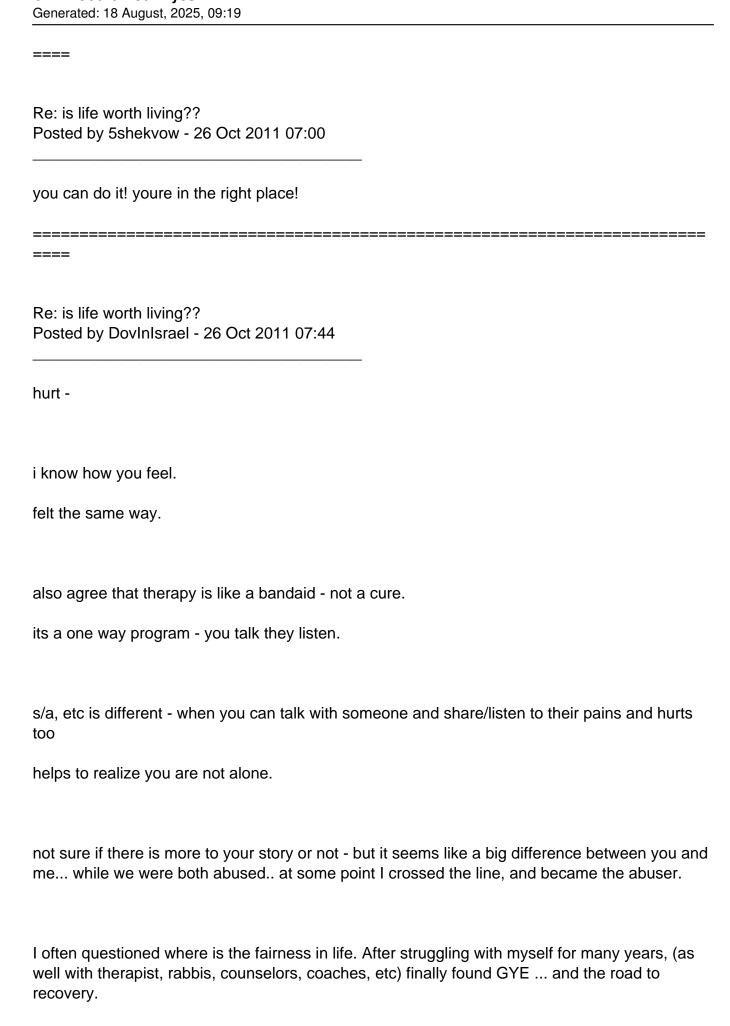

meanwhile, focus on doing things to improve yourself rather than just wallowing in the pain. Work on your relationship with your family, get close to your kids. Read the handbooks and find ways to incorporate the concepts and steps into your life and your thoughts (I am not doing the formal 12 steps, but I found that many of the ideas there helped me a lot.) Share your struggles here with us, it really helps to let it out.

And daven hard and throw your problems on Hashem, say "I really want to let go of this and I can't, So I am giving it over to you". Pischu Li Pesach Kchudo shel Machat, He is just waiting for you to give him an opening, to really commit to change.

And most important of all, do not let yourself be fooled into thinking that this issue defines who and what you are. That is a sure path to depression and giving up. Just remember, you have a special holy neshoma, and you were entrusted by Hashem with this special challenge, because GYE - Guard Your Eyes Generated: 18 August, 2025, 09:19 He knows that you CAN do it, with His help. You just have to ask! Keep On Trucking!!! (and keep in touch) Gevura! Gevura! Re: is life worth living?? Posted by obormottel - 10 Oct 2011 20:01 Dear, dear brother! The guys who are going through what you are (and I know a few) are truly agonizing. It's an exhaustive battle, for sure. But here, on this forum, you found fellow soldiers, you found ammuniation, protective gear, food ratios, and much much more for a successful fight. My personal favorite is the Attitude Handbook, I read it over and over again in my first days, filled with pain and hopelessness that you describe so well. For me, it was a physical struggle, too. I was close to crying many times. You can see my posts about it here http://www.guardvoureves.org/forum/index.php?topic=4302.msg114917#msg114917, and also on following posts down that thread. It does get better, so take it slow, but be consistent. A gute kvittel! Re: is life worth living?? Posted by Gevura Shebyesod - 26 Oct 2011 04:04 How's it going, my friend?

GYE - Guard Your Eyes

but what about those who were abused - what do they get out of it.
One day it occurred to me - they get a taste of olam haBa if they choose the path of forgiveness. Its an incredible level - but its also a fine line which one can cross to the other side and turn their pain into becoming an abuser.
those who hurt you - were not out to hurt you, but were only trying to come to terms with their own pains/hurts.
post.post.post
come out of isolation.
cry if you need to - lots of shoulders here to lean on allow yourself to feel the pain.
if you can feel it - you can heal it.
and one by one - we'll turn this dark world into the light of the dawn (whoooosh!! where'd all that stuff come from hello?? hello? anyone else in here who said that??)
dov.ii
======================================

GYE - Guard Your Eyes Generated: 18 August, 2025, 09:19

Re: is life worth living?? Posted by JackAbbey - 26 Oct 2011 09:14
i understand the feeling of "therapy is like a bandaid" however, my life was literaly saved with therapy
by the way, the best therapy is to really throw yourself in torah BAEEYOON, with all your 248 parts, for a prolonged period, with your mind set that this torah will bring me closer to hashem, and it will teach me to live the way hashem wants me to, then me and anyone else wouldnt be in this forum
======================================
Re: is life worth living?? Posted by hurtandinpain - 26 Oct 2011 11:36
I fell big time!!!!
======================================
Re: is life worth living?? Posted by Gevura Shebyesod - 26 Oct 2011 13:14
But you held out and fought for a couple of weeks first. Hashem sees the effort, nobody is expected to be perfect the first time out.
So get back in the truck, we are all here rooting for you!
Gevura!
======================================