

Don't be shy...

Posted by tryingtoshteig - 29 Jul 2013 17:39

I have noticed over the last week or so, that there have several people who have started posting on the forum, either by jumping into the middle of a conversation (indicating that they have been "lurking on the sidelines" of the forum, and only now want to put in their two cents), or introducing themselves mentioning that "I have been registered and recieving GYE chizuk emails for [a few weeks/months/years] now, but just decided to join the conversation."

If you are one of those people who have been reading emails and/or following everyone's conversations on the forum, but have not yet posted yourself on the forum, I urge you:

Click on "New Topic," choose the category called "Introduce Yourself," and say Shalom Aleichem to all of us! It could be the turning point you need in your life. We all recieve a lot of chizuk from opening up to each other and sharing our struggles. But it doesn't happen if you stay on the sidelines!

I promise you we won't bite...

I agree. It's so much easier to work in this area when you're part of the community. It's much harder when you're by yourself. It's like the difference between learning in the beis hamedrash and learning in your bedroom, only bigger.

There's no reason not to contribute really. Remember, it's all 100% anonymous if you want it to be, and it doesn't take much time either.

Reb Guard,

Maybe you want to include my first post here in tomorrow's email?

That sounds like a deal too good to give up. I'm heading on over to start my intro thread.
Thanks, all, for the encouragement.

thank you for accepting the encouragement and inspiring others

we'll let you off the hook if you turn yourselves in

(and of course to the guys who encouraged you, great job)

I read the emails in the morning, so for me, it was "tomorrow's" email.

My "first and last name" as far as the folks at Gmail are concerned is "Pashut Yid," but my actual email address and GYE user name is tryingtoshteig. So I guess Guard just copied my "name" off my email.
