

Begining the fight

Posted by UnJovenConfundido - 27 Sep 2014 18:37

I was clean for a good time.

I'm 32, single man, with a girlfriend.

I have fallen last for five months into pornography and now i have six on the fight.

I have faced a month which I fall into temptation again.

I want an extra help.

=====

Re: Begining the fight

Posted by UnJovenConfundido - 29 Sep 2014 06:03

Thank to all of you for your answers...

About fantasies, those are sometimes after talk with my girlfriend or text by phone, or just alone, I think to be with her talking, mots of the times hugging her, and sincerely sometimes a little more. When that happen, I think that... I just need to wait, I know that when I get married she will not deny to me nothing proper in this matter.

I'm not having sex with she.

And no, we are not married because we have started as boyfriend and girlfriend six moths ago... get married requires a little more time, and some times it is not to easy like say "just let us do it"...

Best regards to all of you!

=====

Re: Begining the fight

Posted by unanumun - 29 Sep 2014 12:16

UnJovenConfundido wrote:

She is not my wife because we are started our relationship six months ago. It requires some time to get married, and it is not too simple like say "let us do it".

welcome to the forums.

I was married for over four months by the time I knew my wife for six months. I don't regret it and we have had and continue to have a beautiful marriage. It might be easier than you think. (I don't mean to bud into your personal life but just wanted to share my experience with you.)

=====

Re: Begining the fight

Posted by AlexEliezer - 29 Sep 2014 19:26

Thanks for your answers.

I am a very sick lust addict, so what I say doesn't apply to what's normal.

You asked about fantasizing about her. It's probably normal to think about sex when we think about a woman we like.

Personally, though, when I started dating my wife I made extra efforts not to think about her in a sexual way. I didn't want to reduce her to the same base level I reduced all other women to.

Pervert's code of honor.

If only I kept it up after we married.

On to the next issue...

If she's the right one for you, propose to her ("will you marry me").

If she's not, let her go.

You don't need time to develop a relationship with her. You just need to know if she's the right one for you. The relationship comes after you are married.

Just my opinion. Don't take it too seriously. Only you know what's best for you. I probably wouldn't take advice from a random pervert on an anonymous website.

=====

Re: Begining the fight
Posted by dms1234 - 29 Sep 2014 19:33

AlexEliezer

I probably wouldn't take advice from a random pervert on an anonymous website.
best quote ever!

=====

=====

Re: Begining the fight
Posted by UnJovenConfundido - 30 Sep 2014 07:58

Thanks for your answers...

I know she is the right one for me.

I even have asked her about get married, and she agreed.

But when? it is up to me and she.

One thing if for sure...

All of us have lost something, and that is the reason to be here,

Some of us have lost a good standing with our god, trust of family and friends, self respect, on a more or less grade each of us..

So let us take again whatever we have lost...

let us put our worries in God, the only one who will lead us to the right...

and let us do our part for being close to God and our loved ones...

=====

=====

Re: Begining the fight
Posted by dms1234 - 30 Sep 2014 16:02

YAY! SIMAN TOV UMAZEL TOV YAHEY LANU ULCHOL YISRAEL!!!!!!

I dot know if I lost something, in fact it may be I just never found what I was looking for. This turned into misdirected seeking. Whatever the case, thank God for today!

=====

=====