

wow to me!

Posted by chozer el hashem - 12 Apr 2015 19:43

chevrah I need a round of applause! I am home alone a day after pesach (used to be my hardest time) for a few hours and I am strongly overcoming my yetzer hora. I could just see him plotzing. but that's the definition of 'rigzu v'ol techtu' have a fight and win.

I am a big show off and love kuvod but here its to my benefit, I am so strong cause I want to show off here on gye! I don't know what I would've done without this chevra.

=====
=====

Re: wow to me!

Posted by cordnoy - 12 Apr 2015 20:18

Keep your eye on the rear view mirror!

=====
=====

Re: wow to me!

Posted by dd - 12 Apr 2015 20:25

Yes you get the round of applause!!!

But please don't expect the showing off to help long term at all. That will pass at some point. But learning how to really be sober just gets better as time goes on.

KUTGW!!!

=====
=====

Re: wow to me!

Posted by yiraishamaim - 13 Apr 2015 02:21

You feel you have achieved and rightly so. Bravo brave soldier. However in my experience I have found the the more subtle approach of just guiding/blowing/directing the temptation away and saying to myself this is simply not for me - the preferred approach.

Your fighting head on with the biggest bully in town.

Better to just emotionally move to a different place and let him stay where he is without your attention.

=====

Re: wow to me!

Posted by TZADIK - 13 Apr 2015 15:12

WO WEOW HASHEM IS PROUUD OF YOU

=====

Re: wow to me!

Posted by chozer el hashem - 14 Apr 2015 12:13

thanks for the answers i really hear what you are saying, with the help of the chevra we will get there.

=====