

A New movement

Posted by mr.clean - 21 Jul 2015 22:24

---

I have been told by others, and find myself, that once we begin the fall process, meaning we click on something we shouldn't or we do something else that always inevitably leads to a fall, that it's too late. Well I'm sick of that. I know for myself that sometimes I wish I had an incentive to just stop even though I've begun to fall bec I WOULD. So here's a new movement to cut short even if we feel we "fell already" or whatever pathetic excuse we give ourselves. We can post our triumphs here. Any takers?

=====

=====

Re: A New movement

Posted by abd297 - 22 Jul 2015 14:58

---

I'm in. I have fallen prey to the thoughts of I started might as well finish, and I'll fall next time so might as well do it now. I have even blocked out all thoughts mid act because I wasn't going to stop so why think about it an feel bad or guilty. I only I had known GYE then. I would of had something to stop for. It would have been the push that I need to stop mid act. Now I have an awareness to stop thoughts before they turn to actions.

Thanks for the thread and KOP.

=====

=====

Re: A New movement

Posted by mggsbms - 22 Jul 2015 16:37

---

I like this idea !!

=====

=====

Re: A New movement

Posted by shlomoy - 23 Jul 2015 00:43

---

mggsbms wrote:

I like this idea !!

I Could add a short story.....

The Baal Hatanya had a chasid who was not fit for the title of even coming close to the holy Rebbe (because of his wrong doings maybe even openly), and yet was still considered by everyone as a chasid, and the Baal Hatanya himself accepted him.

Once however, one of his students finally questioned the Rebbe: how can he permit someone like this (so called chasid) could be accepted by the Rebbe

The Alter Rebbe answered:

[color=#0000bb][we cant imagine the NACHAS RUACH to the Riboino shel Oilam this man gives.....

every time he holds back from doing an Aveirah[/color].[/b]

=====

Re: A New movement

Posted by shlomoy - 23 Jul 2015 00:45

---

mggsbms wrote:

I like this idea !!

I Could add a short story.....

The Baal Hatanya had a chasid who was not fit for the title of even coming close to the holy Rebbe (because of his wrong doings maybe even openly), and yet was still considered by everyone as a chasid, and the Baal Hatanya himself accepted him.

Once however, one of his students finally questioned the Rebbe: how can he permit someone like this (so called chasid) could be accepted by the Rebbe

The Alter Rebbe answered:

we cant imagine the NACHAS RUACH to the Riboino shel Oilam this man gives.....

every time he holds back from doing an Aveirah.

=====

=====