

Marriage is not a hospital!!

Posted by Here 2 improve - 01 Sep 2015 10:47

I had my wedding 8 months ago and B'H marriage is great, I really feel that I'm growing as a person. However there is one issue that I find impossible to tackle come what may.

To put it bluntly I still cant help checking out every women that passes. Of course I have moments when I'm misgaber and control a 'double take' but I mostly find it a struggle to overcome looking twice.

Furthermore, its hard to admit this, but if I was alone in front of an unfiltered internet it would be a matter of time before I fell in to my desires.

It is extremely frustrating as I feel that shmiras ainyayim is pulling my marriage back from going further as I'm always comparing my wife to other women.

Its not that I don't find my wife attractive, B'h I am attracted to her and enjoy being in her company.

The problem isn't a new one of mine I still looked at every girl that passed when I was a bochur, I knew I was doing a terrible thing but I felt that marriage would solve my issues.

But how naive I was!! Marriage is not a hospital, its not a cure for ones negative traits aderaba in these inyonim its harder as you have a wife to compare to other women.

My wish is to build up a resistance, a strong resistance against what the yetzer hora tries to accomplish.

And ultimately I want to achieve what chazal say, that ones wife should be the only girl in the world.

Many thanks for your time and I hope together with Hashems help and GYE, i can overcome this challenge.

Mi ke'amcha Yisroel!!

Best regards,

Welcome

Hatzlachah on your valiant journey.

Chazal say so? I thought it was Rihanna.

lol your funny.

Actually the zohar actually says that the point of sheno reshoina is to be so much with your wife that every other girl by the end of the year will look like a monkey compared to you wife.

A high level indeed but a level to strive towards nonetheless.

I was speaking to a renowned mashgiach recently and he recommended I read the book 'Windows of the soul' by R' Zvi Miller.

Has anyone read this book??

Hello H2 and welcome to the club.

I have found that the way to not take that second look is to avoid the first look. I work on turning my head and fixing my gaze at some inanimate object when a female approaches my field of vision. Sometimes I just need to close my eyes.

It's not easy. Looking at women is a precious pleasure.

Unfortunately, it's also the gateway to much worse.

I do enjoy looking at mutar beauty much more when my eyes are clean.

Wishing you much success.

That was a great first post. Lots of honesty.

Hope to hear much more from you.

do you feel that this is an issue of tayvah or is it something more then that?

I reckon its just an issue of tayvah gone wild.

What exactly do you mean by more then that?

Hi Alex.

Thanks for your post and concern.

Yes ur 100% right to avoid the first look but the problem starts when she crosses your path inadvertently.

Once you have tasted something you like its soo hard not to have some more.

Alex,

You're not alone. We all struggle some more some less.

(The Slominer Seformim bring a parable from the Russian army who used to rank a soldier by putting him on a wild horse who definitely would through the rider off.

The soldier was then ranked according to the speed he would get up although wounded and get back on the horse)

Though you're right it's not a hospital, but I have heard from "Erliche Yid" that one can really only correct things after marriage.

I strongly suggest the following Kabbolah which I'm trying now and works wonders.

Every time you're by a red light fix your eyes on that light until it turns green "Laasos Nachas Ruach L'Yotzri" (when in motion the images fly by and aren't half as hard to conquer) This will allow you to build up fences of Kedusha instead of fighting the Satan head on.

Hope this helps.

Thank you Betterc for your post.

A good aitzá.

However still need a bit of a stronger plan....there is a limit to how long i can stare at a red light for. Plus the problem still remains regarding if a women strays my path it is difficult to avoid the double take.

One can correct things even beforehand.

double take.

The more I exercise my mental muscles to avoid a first look, and certainly a second look, the less I end up taking a first look even when something crosses my path. If I do catch a glimpse, I have made it a habit to make my eyes bounce off the image and fix my gaze elsewhere, before I can fully take in the image. Or I simply close my eyes. When driving, if there's someone walking on the sidewalk, I will turn my head and gaze as far to the other side as is safe.

I'm talking about ACTIVE shmiras eynayim. Taking the offense is the best defense.

i meant that do you feel it's at the level of addiction and that you are powerless...

@shlomo24

Am i addicted to staring at women?

I dont think so, i wouldn't call it an addiction....But on the other hand i'm not sure maybe it is.

Please define addiction.

Listen to R shayas Taub's shuir from last nite what addiction is. Its somewhere on this site.

If you are not addicted so then whats the problem? Its an issue like every other mitzva just it lurkes at us even more. So learn the shomer emuniam's sefarim.

Hi Everyone,

Today is a beautiful day as usual in yerushalayim ir hakoidesh. BH I managed to control myself significantly better on the way to kolel all thanks to the tips of my beloved brothers, most notably @AlexEliezer and @BetteC.....Many many thanks for your wonderful tips.

I was speaking to a renowned mashgiach about this inyan and I will share with the oilam some fantastic advice that he shared with me (paragraph starting 'we need to go to a brain gym' is an awesome practical tip). Enjoy the read....

2. R Mattisyohu told me that we see from the last line in the rambam that any ???? will keep out invading thoughts , of course torah thoughts are best, but anything gardening, music, a good novel.

When you travel on a bus or walk on s street – wear a music player download stuff to keep your mind on something else.

The rbsh should give you syta dishmaya and give you continued will to want to battle this natural desire and give you the strength to vanquish the dragon !

With my deepest love and admiration
