Hello guys, I hope this finds you well and that you are all working hard every day. It is my pleasure to sign up to this website and talk to any of you. I am a young man struggling with a strong porn addiction. I have not dated yet, but I want to soon and I hear of all these crazy stories...I need help from any of you. Just last night I even met up with a girl and paid for a sexual act...this has to stop...please any advice would be appreciated...

Thank you I will do that but I want to have a private chat with someone who is married that can teach me what marriage is truly about. Thank you!
Why?

SConfused I also am unclear what your question is

Checkout these great old posts

Uri, it's the Bochorim who are actually lucky. "The less you feed it, the less you need it". This is the real- real truth, not just a saying. A Bochor, with a little hard-work in the beginning, can learn to completely let go of lust to the point that he just forgets about it, while a married man has to keep walking a tight-rope of balance!

Uri,

I wish I would have dealt with this head on when I was a bachur! Do you know what kind of damage this wreaks in a marriage? I'm not going to get into details - do you know how difficult it is to appreciate a Bas Yisrael when she's competing with sdom v'amorah? And don't you think she feels that - and creates a horrid cycle.

You are the lucky one; IY"H b'ito u'bzmano you will be able to start with a fresh start with your wife ; not have to rebuild like the rest of us. And B"H rebuild we are - but what a bracha to meet a kallah b'kedusha u'b'tahara! (And of course, we can't reiterate enough - marriage will not cure any of this! Doesn't matter who you marry! No way Jose!)

I am sure the married chevra agree.

Chazak V'Ematz! And I"YH you will be paid back 100 times more in your married life for all of you difficulties now

Marriage is not a cure all.

There are tons of people in the B"B section.

As a matter of fact, we have a waitin' list now.

we are waitin' for someone to recover, so he can leave, and the next guy can enter.
