But inside I know its not like that. for a couple of years iv been struggling with this addiction I tried many times to stop but always fell back. although I never let my falls win me I always fought back only yo fall again. but now that I'm married I know its not enough. I must win for good break free and become back the real me. I sure with the help of gye and all of you who are in this with me I will break free. thanks
