Truth and honesty. Be the person she thinks she is marrying.

I heard that from someone I look upto, but I needed tuning. Truth and honesty are crucial in marriage but that doesn't make someone a great husband.

And if he's masurbating occasionally and tells his wife, that's not the best honesty for marriage either

Are you still serene?

Mazel tov! It should be with brocho and hatzlocha. Find yourself a chosson rebbi. Most nowadays are very well trained in guiding chassanim with the issues they may be struggling with or confused about. Just for starters keep telling yourself that marriage is about giving and giving and then even more giving. Don't worry, you will get too, but that cant be your focus. Your wife is not your cook, maid, and pleasure machine. However if you treat her properly and with humility, iyh you will benefit greatly and feel very proud of yourself. Keep in touch for more.

marriage is about giving and giving and then even more giving.

So true!!

Another point: now as a chosson, it seems very obvious that making your marriage great is the most important goal in your life. But let me share with you that once you're a year or two down the road, other priorities will arise, be it parnassa, kids etc etc and your marriage can fall to the sidelines. The key is to always remember how important it is for you! For if it is the most important thing in your life, anything you will learn will be easy to implement. But if it falls to the sidelines, things get much more complicated.

Anyways, you're in a great place; welcome abroad and stay connected!!
